TURKEY TAKES EXPECTED STEP

Declares War Against Bulgaria and Servia.

BALKAN WAR SCARE NOW AN ACTUALITY

Greek War Fleet Sails Under Sealed Orders.

A General Advancement of the Greek Army into Turkey Is Looked For. Fear Felt That Russia or Austria May Be Dragged into Struggle. Turkey Takes Aggressive and Her Armies Move Against Allies.

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—Turkey today declared war against Bulgaria and Servia.

The Porte sent the following note to the Bulgarian and Servian legations

In consequence of the recent note which constitutes interference with Turkey's internal affairs, and because both the Bulgarian and Servian governments have mobilized their armies, and, further, because of continual skirmishing on the frontiers, Turkey finds it impossible to maintain peace any longer. Therefore Turkey is obliged to end diplomatic relations with both the Bulgarian and Servian governments."

It is a significant fact that Turkey did not include Greece in the hostile declaration, especially in view of the fact that fighting between Greek and Turkish soldiers on the Macedonian frontier has been in progress for over a week. The omission of Greece has led to the belief here that Greece has intimated her willingness to withdraw from the Balkan league.

Attack Servians.

Belgrade, Oct. 17.—Turkish forces attacked Servian troops on the frontier today. They were repulsed, with loss of 200 killed.

War an Actuality

London, Oct. 17.—The war scare in the Balkans became an actuality today War between Turkey and the Balkan kingdoms of Bulgaria and Servia now exists, as well as between Turkey and Montenegro, according to dispatches from Constantinople, Saloniga and other points.

A telegram from Athens states that diplomatic relations between that country and Turkey have been broken off. The Greek war fleet has sailed, under sealed orders. A general advance of the Greek army into Turkey is now expected.

The news of general war in southeastern Europe did not come as a surprise It was expected, after Turkey rejected the note of the continental powers demanding guarantees of Balkan reforms. In London, as well as in the other European capitals, there were cabinet and diplomatic meetings today to consider the problems which will arise from war.

Fear Complications

The principal fear is that some of the European powers, notably Russia or Austro-Hungary, may be dragged into the imbroglio. The triple entente may unite with the triple alliance in a general resolution to prevent this

The stock markets, which were firm yesterday upon news of the conclusion of the Turko-Italian peace were made pressure today from the outward Balkin developements.

As a result of a decisive war in the Balkans, the convention of Berlin in 1878, the latest treaty governing Balkan affairs, will probably be superseded by another, to which all the European powers will be signatories

The present war was brought about by Turkey's alleged violations of article XXIII of the Berlin convention, which had guaranteed reforms in the Turkish provinces of Europe

Turkey at Disadvantage.

Turkey has been taken at a disadvantage by the declaration of a war so late in the year. The bulk of the Turkish armies in Europe will be drawn from Asia and are unused to the severe climate which, from now on will prevail over the peninsula of southeastern Europe. On the other hand the soldiers of Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro are inured to the inclemencies of the late fall and winter.

The [illegible] Greece, Montenegro, Servia and Bulgaria allied against the Ottoman empire, three big campaigns are expected in the Balkans. Of these, one will be in Macedonia, conducted by the Greeks; the second will be in northern Albania, and the third is supposed to be carried out in the East, with Adrianople the objective of the allies.

Turkey Agressive.

Constantinople, Oct 17.—Turkey has taken the aggressive in the Balkan peninsula and her armies are moving upon Servia and Bulgaria as well as upon Montenegro, according to an announcement from the war office here today. When this announcement was made there had been no formal announcement of a declaration of war against Servia and Bulgaria.

A condition of war between Turkey and the Balkan kindgoms now virtually exists. A dispatch from a Turkish newspaper correspondent in Scutari, Albania, states that the Montenegrin siege of that city has been raised

A battle was fought outside the city between a Turkish army and a division of the Montenegrin forces, which resulted in the Montengrins being driven back with the loss of 600 men The Turks captured a battery of three guns.

Turkish reinforcements are strengthening the Scutari garrison and little fear is felt here now that the city will fall.

Greece Severs Relations

Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—Diplomatic relations between Greece and Turkey were broken off today. This is tantamount to a declaration of war

The Greek fleet has sailed, under sealed orders. It is believed they are preparing to attack Turkish islands in the Aegan sea.

A general advance of the Greek army upon the frontier is expected within forty-eight hours.

News of the diplomatic rupture caused great excitement throughout this city. Volunteers are beseiging the military depots, clamoring to go to the front.

Montenegrins Losing.

Salonika, Oct. 17.—Turkish troops, under General Essed Pacha, are steadily driving back the Montenegrins around Scutari, according to a government dispatch from Uskub.

General Martinovitch's Montenegrin army is reported to have been defeated in the Rugovo district, losing two important positions on the heights of Velkia and Plava.

Naval Engagement

London, Oct. 17.—The first naval engagement of the Balkan war has been fought at Preveza, Turkey, in the gulf of Arta, between two Greek gunboats and the Turkish fortress, according to a dispatch from Athens.

The gunboats are reported to have

FUED RESULTS IN DYNAMITING

Four Persons Badly Injured Near Pittsburgh.

MAN BLOWS UP HIS NEIGHBORS' HOMES

And Then Enters Ruins and Attacks Victims.

Peter Messing, a Carpenter, Attempts To Commit Suicide After His Assault on the Families of William Jackson and William Bigger. Hacks Victims with Knife and Saw Before They Can Escape.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 17 —Four persons are badly hurt following the dynamiting of two homes in Pleasant Valley as a result, it is alleged, of a feud of long standing between Peter Messing, aged fifty-three years, a carpenter, and the families of William Jackson and William Bigger, his neighbors.

List of Injured.

Mollie Scott, aged forty years, cut about the head and arms and chest crushed.

James Martin, cut about the side and arms

Mrs. Sarah Martin, mother of William Jackson, cut about head and face

Peter Messing, aged fifty-three, slashed across stomach with knife

Attacks Victims.

According to the police, Messing dynamited the two houses of his neighbors shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, and before the occupants of the Jackson home could escape from the building, Messing entered and slashed and hacked the inmates with a butcher knife and a saw until they were unconscious

Messing then fled to his home and cut a deep gash across his stomach in an attempt at suicide.

War on Race Gambling.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—War on race track gambling at Porter, Indiana, where a track was opened yesterday, was declared today on both sides of the state line. Governor Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, who is in Chicago today, asserted that action had been instituted against the track.

London Silver Market.

London, Oct. 17.—Bar silver was quoted today in this city at 29 5-16 pence.

SERVIAN ARMY NOW IN READINESS TO CROSS THE FRONTIER INTO TURKEY

SERVIAN VOLUNTEERS GATHERED AT THE FORTIFIED TOWN OF PIVOT.

In time of war the Servian field army, consisting of five divisions—a cavalry division of four regiments and two horse batteries, one regiment of mountain artillery and one of howitzers—would amount to about 110,000 combatants. If the reserve troops of the second ban are fit to take the field they would raise the total strength to about 175,000. The reservists of the first and second bans, not required to form the first line and reserve troops, and therefore available to make good losses in the field, would amount to some 95,000 men. These numbers will be a great addition to the other Balkan troops in fighting Turkey.

BALL IMBEDDED IN FOURTH RIB

First X-Ray Plate of Colonel's Wound Developed.

THE MISSILE IS MUCH FLATTENED

Roosevelt's Steady Gain Encourages Surgeons.

The Bullet Fired into Ex-President's Breast Is from Four to Five Inches Below the Surface—Unless Complications Appear, the Colonel Will Be Removed to His Home at Oyster Bay in Near Future.

Chicago, Oct. 17, — Colonel Roosevelt has made such a steady gain in the last 24 hours that the attending surgeons are more hopeful for his ultimate recovery than they have been at any time since he was shot in Milwaukee.

In an examination made at Mercy hospital the colonel's pulse and respiration were shown to be nearly normal, the general condition good, and the patient cheerful and resting well.

That the surgeons themselves feel more hopeful is best evidenced by the admissions in a bit of repartee while the colonel was being examined. As he was being rolled over the colonel exclaimed, with a grin: "I move with greater agility than I have for a couple of days."

"We are all breathing more easily, too," came the quick reply from Dr. J B. Murphy.

'I am struck with the excellence of Colonel Roosevelt's condition after what he has been through," Dr. Lambert, the Roosevelt family physician, said. "There is no question that it is a serious wound with serious possibilities, none of which have appeared, and we shall not anticipate nor cross any bridges until we get there. The folded manuscript and heavy steel spectacle case checked and deflected the bullet so that it passed up at such an angle that it went outside the ribs and in the muscles. If this deflection had not occurred and the bullet gone through the auricle of the aorta or auricles of the heart, Colonel Roosevelt would not have lived 60 seconds."

Bullet Located.

The first X-ray plate which definitely shows the bullet in Colonel Roosevelt's chest, has been developed. The bullet is shown partly imbedded in the fracture of the fourth rib, about four inches from the sternum. The bullet is much flattened and spread out of shape. It is crushed into the upper edge of the rib. Several small splinters of bone project near it.

The surgeons in charge of the case from the first have refused to state in any manner whether the flesh was lacerated in the passage of the bullet. No information on this point can be obtained from the skiagraph Gunshot wounds inflicted by soft lead bullets such as that fired by Schrank into the body of Colonel Roosevelt commonly are lacerated and much contused.

According to the examinations, the bullet is from four to five inches below the surface, and in reaching its present position made a slanting wound from six to seven inches long

Unless complications appear, Colonel Roosevelt will be removed to Oyster Bay Saturday evening This was decided upon in a conference between the surgeons and the Roosevelt family.

Singing songs of praise often scares the wolf from the door.

PRAISES TAFT'S ADMINISTRATION

Secretary of War Stimson Speaks in Buffalo.

HE CALLS WILSON DEMAGOGIC ORATOR

Progressives Also Get Their Share of Criticism.

President's Action in Vetoing Democratic Tariff Bills Upheld—Declares Bull Moosers Do Monstrous Thing To Allow Impulse, Passion and Lack of Vision To Lead Them To Attempt To Destroy Party.

Buffalo, N Y., Oct. 17.—In his address here last night, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said that the efforts of the leaders of the Progressive party to destroy the Republican party are a monstrous thing and that they are allowing the impulse, the passion and the lack of vision, created by the events of a single year, to impel them to this course.

Mr. Stimson presented a carefully-thought-out brief in praise of President Taft and his administration. While many of his references were manifestly made to the third party and its leader, the only opponent of President Taft he named was Governor Wilson, whom he denounced as a demagogic orator. At least, he said the language used by Governor Wilson in his Sioux City address was more appropriate for such an orator than for a former college president.

Reference to Wilson.

This was in reference to Governor Wilson's declaration that he had no use for commissions of experts.

Mr. Stimson said he preferred the position of Dr. Hadley, of Yale, on that question, which is that the test of popular government lies in its ability to command the service of experts.

In this connection, Mr. Stimson praised President Taft for creating the tariff board and denounced the Democrats, who, at the last session of congress, effected the elimination of that board by refusing to make an appropriation for it.

The speaker earnestly defended President Taft's action in vetoing the tariff bills that the Democratic house had sent up to him, declaring that they were nothing but a series of undigested bills which the Democratic statesmen had tumbled over themselves in their eagerness to frame and shower upon the president in a pure and simple play of politics.

Commends President.

Mr. Stimson also commended the president for resisting the pressure that had been brought to bear upon him to intervene in Mexico, implying that that pressure was even greater than that which forced President McKinley into a declaration of war with Spain.

Mr. Stimson continued in part as follows.

"The Republican party is the great liberal party of the nation—not the conservative party which proposes reforms, nor the radical party, which merely agitates reforms, but the liberal party, which accomplishes reforms. Our party contains the men, who believe that the constitution is an instrument of national progress, and not a mere refuge of vested right—an instrument not to be used to protect the great special interests of today in the manner in which John

MADERO ISSUES CALL FOR ARMY

The Mexican President Wants 3,000 Volunteers

TO PUT DOWN THE DIAZ REVOLUTION

Gulf Ports Reported Taken by the Insurrectos.

The Government Is More Alarmed Over the Present Revolt Than Over Any Preceding One—Jalapa, Capital of Vera Cruz, Surrenders to Rebels—Fear That Garrison in Mexico City May Revolt.

Mexico City, Oct. 17—President Madero today issued a call for 3,000 volunteers to fight General Felix Diaz, commander-in-chief of the insurgent allies at Vera Cruz. If that number do not respond, the government will resort to conscription.

The government is more alarmed over the Diaz revolt than over any preceding one. Spanish papers here state that progresso, Puerto Mexico and Matamoras, three gulf ports, have been seized by the adherents of the new revolutionary leader. General Diaz has sent a gunboat from Vera Cruz to attack Tampico, the fall of which would give him control of all Atlantic ports in Mexico.

Jalapa, capital of the state of Vera Cruz, surrendered to the Diaz forces today. The state of Hidalgo is also reported to have gone over to the insurgents.

There are fears of a revolt of the local garrison. Troops of unquestioned loyalty are being distributed at strategic points.

Diaz Issues Statement.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 17 —General Diaz, nephew of former President Diaz, who occupied this city yesterday in the name of the revolution, without firing a shot, made a public statement today, in which he intimated that he is acting in the interests of the former dictator.

Hundreds are rallying to Diaz' standard, and if the war of the allied revolutionary armies against the government of President Madero is successful, it is expected the exiled president will be called back to rule his native land.

"I shall deliver the government of Mexico into the hands of the man whom the Mexican people really want to rule their destinies," said Felix Diaz.

"I hope that, in view of the bitter experience we have had in the past two years, this man will be worthy to preside over the republic of Mexico.

Does It by Request.

"At the request of the best element of the army and most all of the revolutionary army, that I should place myself at the head of both of them to re-establish peace in Mexico, I have accepted the task.

"My program will be the re-establishment of peace, and to that end I now appeal to all men of good will, without distinction or class. I shall work ceaselessly to the end that the reign of true justice may be re-established."

By taking Vera Cruz, the insurgents captured the port of Mexico City.

Two hostile forces are now in the city, for part of the garrison remained loyal to Madero. Fighting is imminent.

WILL NOT LEAVE BEFORE MONDAY

The Colonel Yields to Advice of the Doctors.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S WORD GOOD AS LAW

Ex-President's Condition Continues To Improve.

The Progressive Leader Expects To Dine on Moose Steak This Evening—He Passes a Most Restful Night and Declares He Is Fit To Enter the Fray Again at Once. Telegrams Pour In.

[BULLETIN.]

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The following bulletin was issued this afternoon by Colonel Roosevelt's physicians:

"Pulse, temperature and respiration normal. Blood count has dropped to normal. General condition satisfactory.

"Murphy.
"Lambert.
"Terrell."

To Remain Quiet Until Monday.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will remain in Mercy hospital until Monday. This was definitely decided today by his attending physicians and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The morning report of the physicians was extremely optimistic, but they declared that no risks should be run by their patient, and that it would be unwise to permit him to leave Chicago before Monday.

No political conferences were permitted today.

Hundreds of letters and telegrams poured in on the colonel today. They were opened and read by John McGrath, the colonel's private secretary; Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., his son, and Philip Roosevelt, his cousin. Only a few of the most important were shown the colonel.

Among the letters were a number from children, whose indignation and sympathy had been aroused by the attempt on the colonel's life.

EARLY BULLETIN ON COLONEL'S CONDITION

Chicago, Oct. 17.—The following official bulletin was issued at 9:05 a. m.:

"The pulse, seventy-two; temperature, 98.3; respiration, eighteen, all night. Wound dressed, looks well, some oozing. Examination of lungs by Dr. Alexander Lambert shows lungs in good condition. General condition splendid. The case is progressing so favorably that unless some complications occur, the bullet will not be removed at present.

"Dr. John B. Murphy.
"Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan.
"Dr. Alexander Lambert.

Surgeons in Consultation.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—According to information just available Colonel Roosevelt has definitely abandoned the idea of being removed from Chicago to his home in Oyster Bay before Monday. He had hoped to be permitted to leave Chicago tomorrow. After a consultation at which Dr. Murphy, Dr. Bevan and Dr. Terrell were present, it was announced that the colonel could not leave before Monday at the earliest. At the same time it was declared that the patient's condition was progressing favorably, and that not the slightest indication of a complication that might retard his recovery had been discovered.

The surgeons entered Mr. Roosevelt's room at 8:35 o'clock and remained with him twenty minutes.

Colonel Sleeps Well.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, after a night of almost uninterrupted slumber, called his nurse at 6 o'clock this morning and asked for breakfast. The colonel, who is recovering from the effects of a bullet fired into his chest by John Schrank, a would-be assassin, had been awake since 4 o'clock.

"I have not slept since 4 o'clock," he told Night Nurse Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, as she entered the room, "I feel all right, however. I'm hungry."

The colonel was given an alcohol bath and breakfast was ordered. The tray came in about 7 o'clock, and the wounded man fell to with a relish.

The menu was unchanged. There were three soft boiled eggs, some buttered toast, a few strips of bacon and a cup of tea. The colonel ate every morsel allowed him. He was delighted with his condition this morn

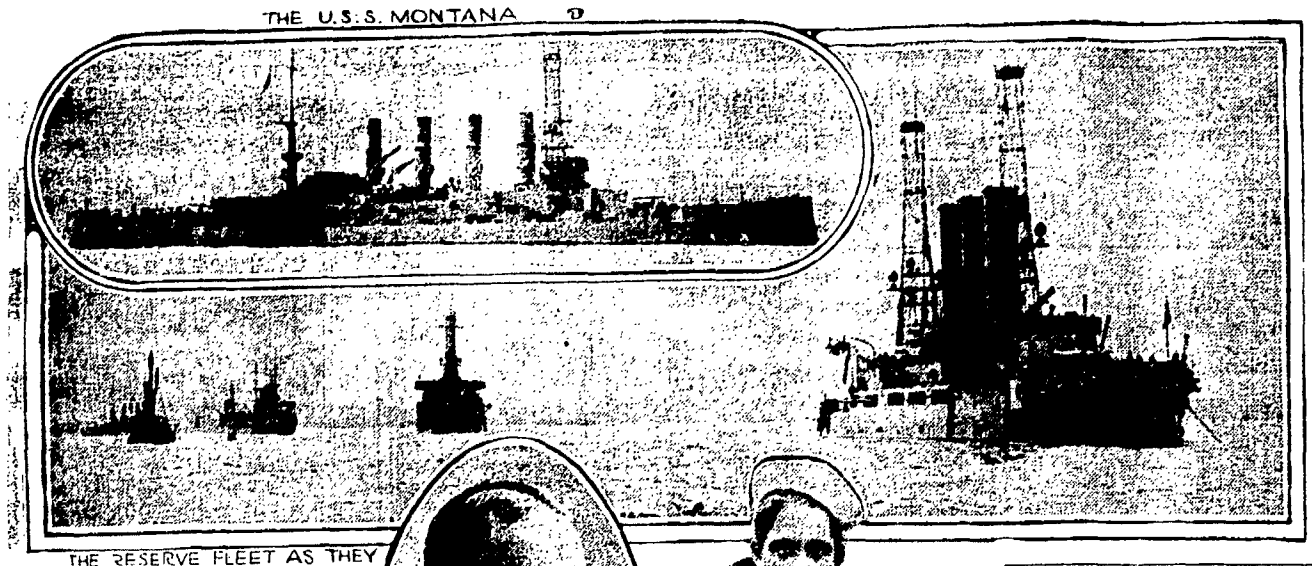
MONSTER VESSELS OF RESERVE FLEET NOW ANCHORED IN HUDSON RIVER



THE RESERVE FLEET AS THEY ANCHORED

REAR ADMIRAL AUSTIN M. KNIGHT

REX, THE WONDERFULLY KNOWING PET OF THE BOYS ON BOARD THE TENNESSEE

REVIEWS GREAT ATLANTIC FLEET

A Great Honor Comes to the Secretary of Navy.

CEREMONIES VIEWED BY MANY THOUSANDS

Officers of the Fleet Exchange Formal Courtesies.

The Largest American Armada Ever Assembled Lies in Majesty in the Hudson—Salute Is Blazed Forth as the President in Mayflower Steams Up the River—Arkansas and Wyoming Excite Admiration.

New York, October 14.—An honor never before accorded the official head of the United States navy fell to the lot of Secretary George von L. Meyer today. He reviewed the biggest American fleet ever assembled and the greatest ever gathered in any harbor of the world.

There was no delay in getting the ceremonies under way, for Secretary Meyer and his aides, on the Dolphin, were all ready shortly after 8 o'clock for the beginning of the day's official events.

While the Dolphin was getting under way for the Connecticut, the flagship of Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, commander-in-chief of the fleet, the Nashville, with more than 250 representatives of the press, was making her way up the Hudson from Forty-Second street to Eighty-First street where the flagship rode at anchor.

In the meantime, between 8 and 9 o'clock, the various division commanders were assembling on the flagship, Connecticut, for the official visit of Mr. Meyer.

The Division Commanders.

The commanders of the four divisions of the fleet, who gathered upon the flagship were: Rear Admiral B. A. Fiske, of the First division; Rear Admiral N. R. Usher, of the Second division; Rear Admiral C. McK. Winslow, of the Third division, and Rear Admiral F. F. Fletcher, of the Fourth division. Others on board were: Captain Frank K. Hill, chief of the staff of the Atlantic fleet, and Rear Admiral A. M. Knight, commander of the Atlantic reserve fleet.

Although nothing of the ceremonies could be seen from the shore save the salutes, Riverside drive was lined with thousands of persons, feasting their eyes on the unrivalled war display in the Hudson. There was much waving of signal flags and flapping of "conversation" pennants from the masts of the great battleships.

It was close to the hour of 9 when Secretary Meyer's flag was broken from the foremast of the Dolphin, as the yacht steamed abreast of the Connecticut. As she did so, the guns of the flagship thundered their salute of nineteen guns.

Before the smoke had lifted above the skeleton masts Admiral Osterhaus, followed by his fellow officers, were putting off in small boats to pay their respects to Secretary Meyer on the Dolphin, which had come to anchor nearby.

Visiting Legislators.

While Admiral Osterhaus and the division commanders were going on board the Dolphin, launches bearing members of the house and senate naval committees were steaming up from Seventy-ninth street. The members of both these committees had been invited on the Dolphin to take part in the ceremonies.

After the brief and formal visit of the commanding officer was over, Secretary Meyer put off in a launch and paid his respects to Admiral Osterhaus on board the Connecticut.

And now came the most interesting part of the program, so far as Mr. Meyer was concerned—the inspection of the two new vast superdreadnaughts, Arkansas and Wyoming.

These two monsters were the most powerful ships in line, representing the last word on sea fighting material in the United States navy. They carry such powerful armament that they could anchor on the ocean side of Long Island and pour their fire over Long island into New York. They could anchor in the harbor and drop 500-pound projectiles into inland towns in New Jersey, a dozen miles off the coast.

Mr. Meyer looked with interest at the great batteries of twelve-inch guns which cost a fortune to fire.

Return to Their Ships.

The division commanders returned to their ships. Rear Admiral Fiske went to the Florida; Rear Admiral Usher to the Louisiana; Rear Admiral Winslow to the New Jersey and Read Admiral Fletcher to the Ohio.

Up to this time the ceremonies had been of a preliminary character. The review of the twelve-mile fleet now began.

The Dolphin, with Mr. Meyer, Rear Admiral Osterhaus, and the official guests, began its cruise past the guns of the great men-of-war. Following in the wake of the Dolphin steamed the steamer Hendrick Hudson, with the members of the citizens' committee on board.

No sooner was the review over than the presidential yacht, Mayflower, upon which President Taft is to review the fleet tomorrow, as it passes out to sea, made her appearance, with the president on board at the head of the line at Twenty-Third street.

Every ship blazed forth the presidential salute of twenty-one guns as the Mayflower steamed slowly up the Hudson. If the big guns had been fired nearly all the windows in Greater New York would have been broken, but the naval officers considerately used three-pounders. These made considerable noise and plenty of gunpowder smoke but had very little concussion.

Meyer Visits Mayflower.

Mr. Meyer and his aides went on board the Mayflower and the president's flag was hauled down.

Then the Mayflower moved up the river to a point near the Connecticut where another round of visits took place. This time, however Admiral Osterhaus and his fellow officers went on board the Mayflower instead of the Dolphin. Later Mr. Taft returned the call. Following the example of Secretary Meyer, Mr. Taft made a trip to the new superdreadnaughts, Arkansas and Wyoming, accompanied by Admiral Osterhause and the chief-of-staff. Mr. Taft, as Mr. Meyer had done before him, showed keen interest in the leviathans of war, with their ponderous machinery of destruction.

After President Taft's return to the Mayflower, his formal visit was returned by Admiral Osterhaus. Then there was a second review of the fleet, this time with both president Taft and Secretary Meyer upon the Mayflower while the Dolphin and the Nashville followed in the wake of the presidential yacht.

Cheers from the lusty throats of the bluejackets greeted the presidential yacht as she passed slowly beneath the great ships in their sombre coats of war paint.

Tonight there will be an official dinner at the Hotel Astor in honor of President Taft, Secretary Meyer and the officers of the fleet.

HOLY NAME DAY IS CELEBRATED

40,000 Catholics Parade in City of Pittsburgh

AS PROTEST AGAINST USE OF PROFANITY

Marchers Kneel in Streets To Hear Benediction.

It Takes Three Hours for Procession To Pass Given Point—Similar Demonstration Takes Place in Columbus, Ohio, with 7,000 Men in Line—Not a Word Spoken During Parade in Ohio Capital.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 14.—As a protest against the use of profanity, 40,000 men, members of the Holy Name society, of the Pittsburgh diocese of the Catholic church, marched through the city Sunday afternoon.

The procession, headed by Willis F. McCook, a wealthy attorney, as chief marshal, moved in three divisions. The line was formed in the down-town district and moved through crowded streets to St. Paul's cathedral.

The marchers, after being reviewed by Bishop J. F. Regis Canevin and other church dignitaries, knelt on the church lawn and in the surrounding streets when Bishop Canevin pronounced the benediction. Bishop Canevin walked near the head of the procession, which took almost three hours to pass a given point.

Men of wealth and professional prominence marched side by side with laborers from the mills and mines. Every parish in the Pittsburgh diocese sent its quota of marchers. Epiphany church, of Pittsburgh, had 1,380 men in line.

The men marched to the singing of hymns and carried the national colors and the emblem of the society. Special trains carried the out-of-town marchers to and from the parade.

Among the thousands who thronged the streets along which the procession passed only three small accidents were reported.

March in Columbus.

Columbus, Oct. 14.—In silent protest against profanity and blasphemy, 7,000 men, members of Catholic parishes in Columbus, marched through the principal streets in honor of Holy Name day. The occasion was observed in many other dioceses throughout the state.

During the parade here not a word was spoken and no blare of trumpet or beat of drum signaled the progress of the marchers. Withal it was one of the most impressive demonstrations ever seen in the capital.

At the conclusion of the march the men went to the cathedral where Bishop J. J. Hartley and Rev. L. F. Kearney, of Zanesville, Ohio, administered vows to the men to abstain from the use of profanity and blasphemy.

DENEEN HANDS OUT SCORCHER

In Reply to Roosevelt Attack of Saturday.

PUTS COLONEL IN THE ANANIAS CLUB

Plan To Cut Down Contests Is Colonel's.

Roosevelt Reduces His Claims on Delegates in the South and His Indignation as He Gets Delegates in Primary States—Agrees Not To Oppose Deneen If the Latter Will Support Him.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 14.—Governor Deneen, of Illinois, last night in a scorching statement, again declares that Colonel Roosevelt did send for him and asked him to introduce a resolution in the Chicago convention limiting the number of contesting delegates.

Colonel Roosevelt Saturday, in Chicago declared that Governor Deneen is a scoundrel and that he never had requested the governor to introduce such a resolution.

Governor Deneen's statement in part says:

"Governor Hadley introduced at the Republican national convention a motion to take from the temporary roll the Taft delegates and substitute Roosevel delegates in certain states. These numbered about seventy-eight delegates.

"Colonel Roosevelt sent for me and asked me to introduce a resolution limiting the number to the thirty-four delegates from Washington, California, Arizona and Texas.

Refused by Deneen.

"I refused to do this without Governor Hadley's consent because he had presented the motion. I felt that I could not change the line of a battle which had been participated in by Governor Hadley and others in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt, and make them appear to be acting either without knowledge or without good faith to the convention.

"I went to the convention and saw Governor Hadley, and Governor Hadley himself wrote the amendment to his motion which I introduced. He wrote it in the presence of Senator Dixon, of Montana; Senator Borah, of Idaho, and myself.

"The motion of Governor Hadley was to strike from the temporary roll the Taft delegates and substitute Roosevelt delegates in their stead. My amendment provided that no delegates whose right to a seat in the convention was questioned by Governor Hadley's motion, should have a right to vote on the selection of a member for credentials committee, or its report.

That Stealing Charge.

"Colonel Roosevelt in his statement of Saturday makes me responsible for Governor Hadley's motion and states that my motion charged that the Taft delegates were stolen. The resolution does not so state, and there is no possibility of placing upon it such a construction.

"Governor Hadley himself said to the convention in urging adoption of his motion:

" 'I do not say that these charges are true. I sat in that committee and know some of them are true. But true or false, let us meet them here.'

"On the general question of contested delegations it may be remembered that Colonel Roosevelt cries 'Crook' and quoted the scriptural injunction, 'Thou shalt not steal' very vehemently regarding the selection of the southern delegates long before the states with primary laws had had opportunity to vote.

"He did this with apparent sincerity, but he reduced his claims and indignation with mathematical precision as he gained delegates in the primary states.

"Colonel Roosevelt went out of his way to seek to injure me by garbled quotations in an effort to make it appear that I was an ally of Senator Lorimer. His statement is without truth or justification.

Deneen's Reply.

"In my testimony before the senate committee I said that Mr. Lorimer in an interview with me had stated that they had enough votes to prevent Senator Hopkins's re-election and that they proposed to elect Speaker Shurtle. In reply I said, 'If you have power to elect Shurtle why don't you elect yourself.'

"Colonel Roosevelt says that Senator Lorimer called at the executive mansion at 2 o'clock in the morning and that I congratulated him on his election as senator. The colonel is at the very antipodes of truth. Mr. Lorimer called at 2 o'clock in the afternoon after he had been elected and was on his way over to his hotel.

"He asked me to make no comments upon his election and hold party matters in abeyance until he could readjust himself and bring harmony out of the discord in our party. I passed the compliments due to the occasion.

The Last Time.

"I saw him in Washington in December following his election, when we had a short talk about waterways, and again the following spring when he came to Springfield to defeat plans for a waterway. I have had no other meeting or relation with him since.

"I shall not answer Colonel Roosevelt's abusive language, except to say that a committee of five representing his party, and with his approval, as I have been informed, called upon me at the statehouse on July 22, 1912, and stated, in effect, that if I would agree to vote for Roosevelt and announce that fact, no third party ticket would be nominated against me and I would be indorsed and supported by the colonel's friends.

"The abuse and opposition which I am now receiving is due to the fact that I am trying to make effective in Illinois the rule of the people by standing by the trust reposed, in me by them at the primaries on April 9.

"Colonel Roosevelt has received fair treatment from the Republicans of Illinois, from its delegates to the convention and from myself. I voted with his friends on every motion that affected his candidacy up to the time that he withdrew from the convention and did every thing within my power to secure his nomination.

"But because he failed, and because I refused to desert the Republican party, I am subjected to unmerited abuse."

THIRTY CONVICTS MAKE GET-AWAY

Eleven of Wyoming Criminals Are Taken Again.

CITIZENS IN A STATE BORDERING ON PANIC

Seventeen Desperate Men Are Still at Liberty.

The Man Taken Today Says He Is Forced To Take Part in Delivery and Goes Back to Prison Willingly. Eleven Persons Killed in Fights. Governor Carey Rushes Home To Take Charge.

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 14.—Armed men today searched from blare of house to house in Rawlins for two of the twenty convicts from the state prison at liberty here after wholesale deliveries of yesterday and Saturday.

One of the two escaped prisoners hiding in the city was found in Rawlins today and returned to the prison without protest. The prisoner had hidden himself in the loft of a livery stable. One of the attendants heard a noise and, going to the loft, found the man partly concealed under the hay.

The prisoner, named Gilmore, had but two months of a two years' sentence yet to serve. He said he had been forced to take part in the delivery, but had not desired to escape and was glad to go back to prison.

In the hills back of Rawlins two posses are trailing eighteen others of the desperate men who broke from the prison stockade.

Militia Held Ready.

Two companies of militia, under arms, waited during the morning for word from Governor Carey that might send them after the convicts or to subdue a riot in the prison itself.

Citizens of Rawlins are in a state of semi-panic, following the double delivery, and the desperate fighting within and just outside the city, which has resulted in the death of nine persons and the wounding of twelve others.

Following the last outbreak, which occurred Sunday night, and which resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of a number of others the mayor has placed an armed guard of volunteer citizens around the prison to prevent convicts escaping into the town.

In all, ten men engaged in the second delivery. They overpowered a warden and marched out of the stockade after arming themselves with all the weapons they could find.

Shoot a Citizen.

Just outside the stockade, the convicts encountered Fred Stauffers, who was returning from a hunting expedition. He attempted to halt them and was shot dead.

A short distance further, the men encountered John Small, a liveryman, who tried to stop them. Small was wounded and the convicts fled to the railway yards, where they hid behind freight cars. The prison guards pursued them through the town.

A battle was fought in the yards and Antole Pasquales, leader of the convicts was killed. Two of the others were captured. Others were wounded, but escaped.

In all, thirty men have broken from the stockade and nineteen are still at libertq. Among them is "Butch" Dalton, a life-termer, serving sentence for murder.

A report received from the hills says that a posse has surrounded seven of the convicts. A desperate fight is expected.

Governor Carey, who was in Nebraska, is hurrying home to take charge of the situation. He has been kept informed of occurences by telegraph.

Two Convicts Shot.

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 14.—Two escaped convicts were shot and killed in the hills near here today by posses sent out after them, according to reports received here shortly after noon.

ROOSEVELT IS SHOT BY CRANK

Is Wounded in Right Breast in Milwaukee.

DELIVERS SPEECH IN SPITE OF HIS INJURY

Colonel's Life Probably Saved by Manuscript.

Man Giving Name of John Schrank, Attempts To Kill the Ex-President as He Is Leaving Hotel—Declares He Seeks Revenge for Having Been Driven Out of the Saloon Business in New York.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was shot in the right breast by a man as he was leaving the Gilpatrick hotel for the Auditorium to make a speech.

Despite the wound, the colonel went to the hall and began his speech after he had seen the assailant arrested and taken to the police station.

There the man, after an hour's questioning, said he is John Schrank of 870 East Tenth street, New York.

Roosevelt, at the conclusion of his speech, was taken to Emergency hospital.

The would-be assassin is 5 feet 5 inches in height, weighs 170 pounds, light complexion, bald, fairly well dressed.

In notes found in the man's pocket at the police station were statements that the man had been visited in a dream by the spirit of William McKinley, who had said, indicating Colonel Roosevelt, "This is my murderer, avenge my death."

He confessed to the police that he fired the shot and made the remark: "Any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

Life Saved by Manuscript.

It is said Roosevelt felt no pain at the time the shot was fired and was not aware that he was shot until he was on the way to the Auditorium. His attention was called to a hole in his overcoat, and he found that his shirt was soaked with blood. He insisted that he was not hurt badly. A superficial examination of the wound was made when he reached the Auditorium, and three physicians said that he was in no danger.

Colonel Roosevelt's life probably was saved by a manuscript of the speech which he delivered. The bullet struck the manuscript, which retarded its force as it passed through into the flesh. His assailant was prevented from firing a second shot by Albert H. Martin, one of Colonel Roosevelt's two secretaries.

Colonel Roosevelt had just stepped into an automobile when the would-be assassin pushed his way through the crowd in the street and fired. Martin, who was standing in the car with the colonel, leaped onto the man's shoulders and bore him to the ground.

Captain A. O. Girard of Milwaukee, who was on the front seat, jumped almost at the same time, and in an instant the man was overpowered and disarmed.

Roosevelt Delivers Speech.

When Roosevelt had reached the Auditorium and made his way amid great cheering to the front of the platform, those close to him could see a streak of red on his white waistcoat.

"An attempt has just been made to kill me," said the colonel to an audience that had stifled its first cheers and now listened in absolute silence. "I am carrying th bullet in my body now, and so I will have to cut my speech short."

The manuscript of his speech doubtless had done much to save his life. When he had come on the platform at the auditorium and drew the manuscript from his pocket during his first few words the torn sheets of paper showing many stains of blood, showed also that the bullet had gone through the manuscript.

"You see," cried the colonel, holding up the manuscript so that his audience could see the bullet hole through the sheets of paper, "it takes more than that to kill a Bull Moose." He attempted to go on with his speech, but first he digressed to assure his audience that his wound was not serious.

Schrank Escapes Mob.

Schrank after shooting Colonel Roosevelt had a narrow escape from being lynched by the mob, who tried to drag him away from the police. As soon as the police, however, had got him clear of the mob that swirled about him, they rushed Schrank to police headquarters.

The police first came across the memorandum of the Roosevelt tour and other notes which showed that Schrank had been following the colonel's every move for some time. Next they drew from his pockets a proclamation which declared that Roosevelt or any other man "seeking a third term as president" should be shot. When Schrank finally told the police his name and address in New York, he became quieter and finally settled down to tell more of himself. "I was in the saloon business with my uncle in New York," he said, at last "when Roosevelt was police commissioner. Roosevelt closed out our saloon and I have hated him ever since."

The colonel's speech in the Auditorium lasted altogether about 50 minutes. His address, needless to says, digressed from the written manuscript through which Schrank's bullet had ripped its way. Again and again during his 50 minutes' talk he stopped to take a sip of water. His physical strength, however, was not equal to the task that he had set for himself. He gave fragments of the speech he had written and extracts from other speeches that he had delivered at various times from Maine to California. Constantly throughout the address the colonel's friends urged him to cut short his talk, but he continued on.

"Certain newspaper influences," he said, "were to blame for the attempt at the assassination. A weak-minded man had been influenced," he said, "by these unjustifiable newspaper attacks, and then had determined to kill me."

Surgeons' Report.

A bulletin signed by Drs. L. Terrell, a throat specialist who is traveling with the colonel; Faille, Joseph Colt Bloodgood and S. A. Stratton, read:

"Colonel Roosevelt is suffering from a superficial flesh wound below the right breast, with no injury of the lung. The bullet probably lodged somewhere in the chest wall, because there is but one wound and no sign of injury to the lung. The bleeding was insignificant and the wound was immediately cleansed externally and dressed with sterilized gauze by the consulting surgeons of the Emergency hospital.

"As the bullet passed through the colonel's army overcoat, other clothes, doubled manuscript and metal spectacle case, its force was much spent. The appearance of the wound also presented evidence of a much-spent bullet.

"The colonel is not suffering from shock and is in no pain. His condition is so good that the surgeons did not object to his continuing his journey to Chicago in his private car, where he will be placed under surgical care."

After more thorough examination it was decided later that the wound was not dangerous, and plans were changed. Colonel Roosevelt was placed upon a special train and started for Chicago at an early hour today.

CHARLES C. MAPES ADJUDGED INSANE

Unfortunate Man Will Be Taken to State Hospital.

Last July, Charles C. Mapes, fifty years old, a well-known farmer residing near Agosta, suffered a paralytic stroke when at work in the hayfield. Tuesday, in the probate court, he was adjudged insane by Judge William S. Spencer and ordered committed to the state hospital for the insane in Columbus. His condition, according to the medical certificates signed by Dr. C. E. Sawyer, of Marion, and Dr. E. Culbertson, of Agosta, was caused by hardening of the arteries.

Mr. Mapes has been in fairly good physical health. He became morose and sullen, easily angered and was indifferent to things about him. He grew violent, attacking his wife with a cane, and said he was "living with the wind."

The unfortunate man was taken to the state hospital by Sheriff John G. Stark, Wednesday.

MANY ATOMOBILES REGISTERED IN COUNTY

A Big Gain Is Shown by Report of Registrar.

An idea of the great number of automobiles in Marion county is found in the figures furnished by the state auto registrar today. These figures show that, for the first nine months of 1912, just 622 automobile licenses were issued to Marion county motorists.

Last year the total number was 490, thus a big gain is shown for the first nine months of this year over all of last year.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to ninety days in the Dayton workhouse. O'Neal defrauded Charles McElroy, of Senate street, out of a board bill of $32.50 and $7.50 for working clothes, which McElroy had to pay because he guaranteed the payment. O'Neal was formerly employed by the Marion Steam Shovel company. He drew his pay of $26 and skipped out.

SAYS HE ATTEMPTS TO KILL FOR THE GOOD OF THE NATION

John Schrank, the Would-Be Assassin of the Colonel, Declares His Attack Is Not a Personal Affair.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the man who last night tried to slay Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, stared at a group of newspaper men, who stood outside the door of his cell at the police station here this morning and asserted that his life had been wasted because Roosevelt will live.

"Suicide," Schrank said, with a note of wonder in his voice, "I never thought of it. I did not expect to survive Theordore Roosevelt more than ten minutes. I thought the mob would lynch me. That, of course, was of no consequence to me. The work of my life would have been finished if I had put a bullet in the heart of the man, who is seeking a third term as president.

"They tell me I failed. Well, I suppose my life is wasted. I shall never have another opportunity. I have done my best. More than that, no man can do. Some men must be failures. If I am chosen to be one of them, what can I do about it?"

This morning, Schrank spoke more coherently than he did last night just after the shooting. He slept during part of the night, though his guards wakened him frequently to ask questions. His answers were at times incoherent. Today he reiterated his statement that he had long ago determined to kill Roosevelt.

Not a Personal Affair.

"From the time of the Republican convention in Chicago," Schrank said, "I knew that I must kill Roosevelt. This is not a personal affair with me. I have acted for America."

Then Schrank repeated his assertions of the night before that he was led to conclude that the death of Roosevelt was necessary to avoid civil war.

John Schrank made a new confession to the police today. He declared that it had been his intention to keep shooting at the ex-president until absolutely certain that he was dead, but that the crowd frustrated him.

The police are convinced that Schrank is a maniac. They are making a rigid investigation of his past life to see if he had any accomplices, but are convinced that he acted alone in his attempt to kill the former president, after following him about the country.

In appearance Schrank is short, stout and shabbily-dressed. The most remarkable part of his features is his eyes. They are red-rimmed, blue and watery. At times they have a wild, incoherent look, and at others they give only a meaningless stare, as though their owner was unconscious of what was going on around him.

Expected Instant Death

In his confession, Schrank said he expected to be torn limb from limb after killing Roosevelt.

"I did not think of escape afterward," Schrank said. "I did not think there was a chance in the world. I expected that I would be torn to pieces before I would have time to fire at myself, even if I had planned suicide. My intention was to shoot repeatedly at Roosevelt until I knew he was dead and by that time it would have been too late to do anything to myself or for myself.

"Suicide? That is a coward's death. Now I am ready to die."

Schrank said he fired the shot because he was convinced that Roosevelt was trying to be the first American king.

"The trouble with this country is," Schrank said, "is that too few people are on the square. There are probably 100,000 people who know it is their duty to keep this blatherskite from becoming king. The third term is the first step in this ambition.

"All good Americans know that we must have no kings here. There are thousands who would have been glad if I had succeeded. They would have rejoiced in secret. I wish I had been successful.

"If I were given another chance this afternoon I would take better aim and kill this man. He is the most dangerous man in the world today."

Schrank was asked if he felt no regret.

Regrets His Failure.

"I regret that I did not kill him," he replied. "That is what I feel. It was the greatest failure of the many failures of my life."

Schrank made incoherent remarks about another completing his task. He was asked if he meant that there was an accomplice, who would try to shoot the colonel.

"I didn't say there was an accomplice, except that all men, who know what this country wants and what Roosevelt wants, are my accomplices. I mean that there are many men who know what this one man's ambitions are They will see to it that he never realizes them."

Schrank protested that he had not been actuated by personal motives in his attack upon Colonel Roosevelt. He said his hatred of the ex-president dated back to the time when Roosevelt was police commissioner of New York and compelled the saloons to obey the Sunday closing law.

Three proclamations addressed to the people of the United States, were found in Schrank's pockets. In them he claimed to have been inspired to kill Roosevelt by visions. Once, he wrote, he saw, in a dream, President McKinley pointing to a figure as his murderer and the figure was Colonel Roosevelt.

Uses Fortune in Cause.

Schrank said he had money of his own and that an uncle in New York left him $25,000, and that it was this money that was used in his trailing of the colonel from place to place in an effort to find opportunity to assassinate him.

"I am not the irresponsible lunatic people seem to think," said Schrank, "I know what I am doing, and I have been acting systematically. I expect I shall get fifteen years or so—maybe more. I fully anticipated a life sentence or hanging. I would gladly have paid either penalty for a greater measure of success."

Schrank said he was not a drinking man. He had never used liquor since he was a saloonkeeper.

Schrank was questioned carefully in an effort to find out whether he had been selected by accomplices to carry out a death sentence. After the questioning was finished, the police here believed that Schrank was acting absolutely alone.

Attempts Suicide.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—That John Schrank, who attempted to assassinate Colonel Roosevelt, later tried to kill himself, is the belief of Elmer E. Martin, private stenographer to the former president. Martin seized the man after the shot was fired.

"When I leaped upon the man," he said, "it seemed to me as though he was trying to get the revolver into position to fire a bullet into his own heart. I wrested the gun from him, but it was not until after a struggle.

"Just before the shooting, I was standing on the sidewalk a few feet away from the colonel. I caught a glimpse of the revolver as the man pointed it. A moment later I heard the shot.

"The near door of the automobile was open, and I dashed through it and leaped over the other one. I landed on Schrank. The impact threw him to the ground on his face."

It was then, Martin said, that he believed the would-be assassin tried to end his own life.

THE PERSON OUTSIDE.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for October 20 is, "Mission to the Gentiles, Mark 7:24-30; Matt. 8:5-13.

At the colse of a mid-week prayermeeting in a Philadelphia church, the members were grouped about chatting sociably together. The door opened and a roughly dressed man, covered with dust entered. Immediately there was a cessation of conversation, and a drawing together of the groups, who eyed the stranger suspiciously. In a moment one of the officers went up to him to inquire his errand. Upon his return, he reported that the man was a prosperous contractor who had stopped to buy some tickets for an approaching lecture course in the church! At once everybody present felt ashamed of himself for his inhospitality toward the stranger whom he had regarded as a tramp. That the man should be a well-to-do citizen in his working clothes put a new face on the question entirely.

This deep-rooted sense of our own crowd, and our instinctive tendency to turn our backs upon the outsider, especially if he seems an inferior, is a fundamental fact in human nature. No matter how much we talk about brotherhood, it is difficult for even the most tolerant of us to realize that every man is a brother and a possible equal. That is why democracy is the highest attainment of humanity. The exclusive attitude in politics and society and in religion is easy and natural. The democratic, brotherly attitude can only be achieved by conscious effort, or by a new spirit.

Religious snobbery crops out in this Sunday school lesson, which is the story of two persons whom the orthodox called heathen. We find them, however, the objects of the Master's solicitude, and subsequently members of His fellowship and recipients of His praise.

A Foreign Mission Journey.

One of the vivid travel experiences is a strip down along the Mediterranean coast to the region of Tyre and Sidon. The ruins of old Phoenicia, overlaid with Crusader castles, are frequent. Rock tombs, rifled by succeeding centuries of vandals, meet one at every turn. The city of Sidon one of the most distinctive and picturesque on earth, carries the imagination back to the unchronicled antiquity. The tour, so full of incident and interest, recalls the visit of Jesus over that same road when he broke over the boundaries of Israel and went into the heathen parts of Phoenicia.

Like a prince traveling incognito, Jesus wanted to go quietly and without public recognition. "But He could not be hid,' 'runs the significant record. Of course not! Such a life of ministry as His cannot be concealed. Wherever there is human need and spirit hunger it will hunt Him out. Let anyone do a real work and live a real life, and the world will discover him. Our trouble is that we are trying to inform the world of ourselves, rather than to live the life and do the work. Because Jesus was Himself, it was inevitable that He should be known of men. The very radiance of His benign face would mark Him off from the mob of men.

An Outlander's Need.

This western world of ours, which is by no means lacking in racial and religious antipathies, can yet show nothing like the spirit which pervaded the East in Jesus' time, and which is today characteristic of this identical region. It was in Sidon that a group of educated Christians poured out to meet their bitter plaint against the injustices and indignities and outrages they suffer at the hands of the Moslems. The simple fact that a man is a non-Moslem marks him for possible massacre. Then, as now, racial and religious lines were high barriers.

Jesus, be it remembered, was a Jew, who had come to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. One day He was met by a Greek woman, a dweller in this heathen fringe of the Holy Land. She was a gentile and a pagan, and accustomed to hear from the orthodox Jews the appellation of "dog." But she had a deep human grief which took no account of her nationality or religion. The elemental human qualities run through all colors, races and creeds. As Shakespeare makes Shylock say:

"Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, sense, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer as a Christian is?"

This woman's daughter was in the clutch of an evil spirit. The predominant fact in the family life was the illness of the child. The supreme ambition of the mother and daughter was health for the afflicted one. So, brushing away all barriers that separated the Gentile from the orthodox Jew, she fell at the feet of Jesus and entreated Him, with a paroxysm of urgency such as only they who have encountered an oriental beggar, or one asking for mercy, can understand. It is a very real and human picture which the historian records here—a mother pleading for her child. Her great need had given her great daring.

A Woman's Quick Wit.

Let us not get into difficulties over this passage. The answer of Jesus to the woman had been, "Let the children first be filled; for it is not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it to the dogs." That word "dog" sounds harsh to us. We know that to this day Jew and Moslem speak of "Christian dogs." The woman was not unused to this speech of the time. She expected it, as the tolerant and cultivated Chinese take the word "heathen" from the unthinking lips of a Christian.

The quick witted woman saw that Jesus was only testing her, and that He spoke with a tenderness and consideration that took all the sting out of the conventional word, for instead of calling her by the simple, rough word "dog," which would have meant the pariahs of the street, Jesus used the diminutive, which meant "pet-house-dog." It was very much as when a father said to his little boys wrestling about the floor in exuberence of animal spirits, "You puppy dogs." There was no sting nor offense in the phrase. With a woman's keen intuition, the Syro-Phoenician suppliant saw her opportunity and instantly rejoined, taking advantage of the figure of the house-dog, "Yea, Lord, even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs."

There was no resisting such humility and persisting faith. The daughter was cleansed straightway. Thus began the foreign mission enterprise, at least in its medical aspect.

The Soldier's Confidence.

The second incident included in this lesson is laid back in Capernaum, the home city of Jesus, and, for those who are fond of pursuing types, it may represent Christian work for foreigners in one's native land This time it was not a suppliant alien woman who approached Jesus, but a proud Roman commander, solicitous for a servant stricken with the palsy.

This man warms our heart. He is of the type to whom "noblesse oblige" was a vital principle. He humbled himself for his servant's sake: the welfare of his dependents was the fundamental concern of his life. If all employers were like this Roman centurion, there would be scant need to write about an industrial problem. As we contemplate this incident, we may study, each for himself, this portrait of a perfect gentleman, with all the qualities that appertain thereto.

The sudden delight of discovering noble qualities where they were not expected was given to Jesus. His own royal heart must have leaped as He saw this proud Roman bending a knee in behalf of a slave. As chivalry instantly responds to chivalry, and as gentility commands gentility, so Jesus instantly responded, "I will come and heal him."

Still higher rises the lofty spirit of the centurion. He knew what belonged to mastery. Himself a man of authority, accustomed to say to this one, "Go, and he goeth; and to another come, and he cometh; and to my servant do this, and he doeth it," the centurion replied with the noble self-abasement of the great, "I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof, but only say the word and my servant shall be healed." It was greatness recognizing greater greatness. It was a noble mind in the presence of a nobler.

Salvation Not A Birthright.

That recognition thrilled Jesus' heart. Not even Israel, with all its doctors of the law, not even the multitudes who had seen the miracles, not even His own disciples, had displayed the faith of this Roman.

The marvel of it all caused Jesus to turn to His followers and say, 'Many shall come from the East and the West and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, but the children of the kingdom shall be cast forth into the outer darkness."

That utterance,—and this is the teaching of the incident—was a terrific blow to all who count on their descent or upon their membership in a certain body to insure them the good things of this world and the next. We cannot inherit the kingdom of heaven through somebody's else virtues. Personal faith is the only key that fits the door of the kingdom of heaven. Many who have thought themselves elect will be shut out, while the heathen throng in "The first shall be last and the last first."

PROSECUTION GAINS POINT

Banker Identifies Signature of Olaf Toeitmoe

TO LETTERS SENT TO LABOR LEADERS

Mary Dye Appears as Witness for Government.

Miss Dye Is Confidential Secretary to J. J. McNamara—She Is Supposed To Possess Valuable Knowledge of Inner Workings of Dynamite Conspiracy—Trial of Leaders Continues in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Oct. 17.—C. C. Campbell, cashier of the Merchants' National bank, at San Francisco, this forenoon identified the signature of the coast labor leader, Olaf A. Tvietmoe, to alleged incriminating letters he wrote to J. J. McNamara and others of the alleged dynamite conspiracy, now on trial in federal court here.

Thomas J. Hamilton, editor of the Labor Review, Minneapolis, identified the signature of the defendant, Charles M. Beum, to alleged incriminating letters.

More than 200 witnesses have been used in the work of identifying letters, signatures and hotel registers thus far. Senator J. W. Kern is leading the counsel for the defense. Some of the jurymen sit most of the time with their eyes closed.

Appears for State.

Mary Dye, of Pittsburgh, sweetheart and confidential secretary to J. J. McNamara for three years preceding 1910, appeared as a government witness.

Miss Dye's testimony began mildly with the identification of ironworkers' correspondence and signatures. At the time of McNamara's arrest there were many sensational stories of Mary Dye's associations with McNamara, one of them to the effect that McNamara had jilted Miss Mary.

The girl is supposed to possess knowledge of the inner workings of the dynamite conspiracy. It is believed she will be recalled by the government later and that she will give some of the most sensational evidence in this sensational case.

Should Miss Dye tell her story for the government, she will have made good her alleged threat, said to have been made at the time of her split with McNamara, to the effect that some day she would even up with him.

ANOTHER WHITE GIRL LIVING WITH JOHNSON

Mother Appeals to Chicago Police To Rescue Daughter.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Asked by Mrs. F. Cameron-Falconet, of Minneapolis, to rescue her daughter, Lucile Cameron, alleged by the mother to be living as housekeeper of Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, the police today are uncertain what move to make.

The officers made a careful investigation following the woman's request, and found a number of persons who asserted that the girl, who is nineteen, white, and said to be handsome, had been frequently seen in Johnson's company.

The police allege that Johnson has admitted the girl is living in the apartments of Mrs. Etta Duryea Johnson, who recently killed herself. It is further alleged by the police that the former Mrs. Johnson killed herself, after seeing her husband with the Cameron girl in one of the private apartments of the Cafe de Champion.

Johnson, the police say, alleged that the girl, who has been in the apartments since a few days after the death of his wife, is his housekeeper, and he has defied the police to take any action. The champion denied a story that he had married the girl.

Mrs. Falconet first appealed to the civil service commission, then, at the advice of the commissioners, went to the chief of police. He took the matter up and personally conduced the investigation.

APPEALS MADE TO THE PROBATE COURT

Matter of the Seckel and Thompson Pike Improvements.

In the matter of the Seckel and Thompson pikes, both of which were granted by the county commissioners, the Chicago & Erie, Nypano and Big Four railroads have filed petitions-in-appeal in the probate court. Both the Chicago & Erie and Big Four railroads filed damage claims of $15,000 each in the matter of the Seckel road, claiming that they would have to build a viaduct near Slick's station, east of the city. The railroads were only allowed $11.25 each for compensation of land taken by the commissioners, and as a result the appeal is taken.

In the matter of the Thompson pike the Chicago & Erie railroad was allowed only $30 compensation for land taken. The Thompson road is located west of town.

Both matters will be tried by juries, the dates of the trials not being set.

NOTICE IS GIVEN OF ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Sealed Proposals To Be Received by Commissioners.

Wednesday afternoon, the county commissioners got notice that sealed proposals will be received at the office of the state highway commissioner in Columbus until 2 p. m., November 1, for grading and paving with bituminous Mecadam the Marion and Delaware road, the strip being located in Pleasant township, Marion county.

The length of the proposed improvement is 8,430 feet or 1.55 mile. The width of the macadam will be fourteen feet, and the estimated cost of the construction is $9,118.28. The date set for the completion of the work is August 1, 1913, and the successful bidder will be required to give bond for an amount equal to the contract price.

Bank Discount Raised.

London, Oct. 17.—As a result of the market situation throughout Europe, arising from the Balkan crisis, the minimum discount of the bank of England was advanced one per cent. today, from four per cent. to five per cent.

Skirmish Fights.

Sofia, Oct. 17.—Fighting between Turkish gendarmes and Bulgarian border patrols is in progress all along the southwestern Bulgarian frontier. The skirmish line extends nearly 100 miles.

Discount Raised in France.

Paris, Oct. 17.—The bank of France today raised its minimum discount rate one-half per cent. to three and one-half per cent. This is an unusual proceeding and one seldom taken by this institution. In the present instance it was inspired by the Balkan crisis.

Leaves for Frontier.

Sofia, Oct. 17.—Accompanied by his staff, Czar Ferdinand left here today for military headquarters near the Turkish frontier. It is believed that formal declaration of war will be issued against Turkey.

Commits Suicide.

Teneriffe, Canary Islands, Oct. 17.—W. W. Kitchen, who was appointed United States consul here while a resident of Buffalo, New York, committed suicide today. He was a sufferer from chronic heart disease.

A daughter was born, Wednesday, to Mr. and Mrs. John Stumbo, of west Columbia street.

WILL NOT LEAVE BEFORE MONDAY

ing. He had a night of almost uninterrupted sleep. Only once was he awake, and then only for a short time. In all, he slept about five and a half hours—a total that is close to his usual average.

"I feel bully this morning," Roosevelt told the nurse. "At this rate of improvement it won't be long before I am out of here. I had a most refreshing sleep."

At 6 o'clock, when he called Miss Fitzgerald, the colonel's temperature was 98.4 degrees, his pulse seventy-two and his respiration eighteen. All these marks are virtually normal.

The colonel's night, as shown on the nurse's record, pleased his physicians today. The patient went to sleep shortly before 10 o'clock. It was 2:10 o'clock this morning before he awoke. When he did, the thermometer showed no indication of fever. At that hour his temperature was 98.4, pulse seventy-four and his respiration eighteen. When he awoke his temperature was 98.2, his pulse seventy-four and his respiration eighteen.

Mrs. Roosevelt was awake at 4 o'clock and talked with her husband a few minutes. "Let's see you smile, Mother—we're out of the woods."

This was Colonel Roosevelt's demand upon Mrs. Roosevelt, when she tiptoed to his bedside from her own apartment next door. Mrs. Roosevelt touched the ex-president's brow lightly, found no trace of temperature, smiled as she had been bidden and, leaning over, kissed her husband before retiring.

"Everything is as it should be, nurse," Mrs. Roosevelt whispered to Miss Fitzgerald, who displayed anxiety about getting her distinguished guest back to bed, for the hospital felt chilly in the early morning hours.

Early today Mr. Roosevelt demanded to know whether he would be permitted to assume the airs of a convalescent, in view of his improved condition.

"If this had happened in the field," said the patient to his attendants, "I'd have got first aid. If I was lucky, and then cleaned up the business in hand without further fuss."

But there is no doubt that the colonel has been brought to realize the seriousness of his wound, which all the doctors in Milwaukee were unable to impress on him in the exciting two hours that followed the shooting.

On Mrs. Roosevelt's decision the time the colonel leaves the hospital depends. She is in absolute control of the sick room. Even the colonel admits that. The former president is anxious to return to the campaign. He is certain that he will be able to stand the exertion early next week. He wants to return to New York Saturday.

Mrs. Roosevelt wants her husband to be cautious. She does not want him to run any risk, especially that of pneumonia, which the physicians have warned her, might follow unusual exertion with the wound in the colonel's side.

Early this morning after one of her brief visits to the colonel's room, Mrs. Roosevelt intimated that it might be some days yet before she would consent to her husband leaving the hospital and starting to Oyster Bay. She said no move would be made until the doctors were convinced there would be no complications. She believed the ten-days confinement, originally suggested as necessary, might be adhered to.

The last danger of infection should pass by noon tomorrow, according to the surgeons, and if the colonel's condition then is as satisfactory as it was this morning, it is possible the doctors will consent to his leaving for the East. They believe it might be better for him to be in his own home where he could look after some of the details of his campaign than to remain in the hospital here, disturbed because he could not give personal attention to those things.

Ready To Travel.

Colonel Roosevelt himself believes he will be able to travel Saturday. In fact, if the doctors would permit, he would be willing to start for the East today. He is planning confidently on addressing the Madison Square garden meeting in New York, October 26.

"There is not a thing that could cause alarm," said Miss Fitzgerald, as she went off duty this morning. "Mr. Roosevelt is a splendid patient and he does precisely what the doctors have ordered. He passed a restful night. Mrs. Roosevelt only visited him once during the night. He wanted a big breakfast and laughs at the idea of being ill. He says he never felt better."

A consultation of surgeons, to decide whether or not Colonel Roosevelt may be permitted in some degree to resume active discussion of political affairs was scheduled for this morning.

Late Wednesday night the colonel wanted to be given assurance that the embargo on talk and visiting would be removed today, but Mrs. Roosevelt displayed the utmost firmness in this matter, and insisted that no political exigency was of sufficient importance to warrant risking a setback.

Mrs. Roosevelt had shown an ability to impose her will upon her husband that amazed Colonel Roosevelt's political associates and reveals a side of her character never before presented to the public.

Mrs. Roosevelt is buoyed up by the exigencies of the situation, and there is fear in some directions that she may be ill after all possible danger has been removed in Mr. Roosevelt's case, but the doctors are watching her very closely and she is compelled to sleep, although anxious to remain perpetually on watch.

Mrs. Longworth and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., planned to take their mother for a motor car trip through the parks today.

Moose Steak for Dinner.

Colonel Roosevelt will dine on moose steak and trimmings tonight, if the consent of the attending surgeons can be obtained.

A coterie of the colonel's admirers have discovered a quarter section of moose meat in a cold storage warehouse, and the tenderloin steaks are intact.

Dr. Terrell, first of the surgeons to reach the hospital today, declared the colonel could have moose meat if he wanted it.

The colonel's breakfast was merry today. Mrs. Roosevelt was with him. Occasional bursts of laughter by Mr. Roosevelt could be heard. Mrs. Roosevelt was relating for the first time her efforts to get started west, after receiving the first news of the shooting, when it was believed that the injury was entirely superficial.

"This hospital chef knows how to cook," remarked the colonel. "Everything tastes fine, bully."

The attendants in the room laughed at Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiasm and faithfully reported to the chef, who was overcome with emotion.

Theodore Roosevelt's condition was declared entirely satisfactory and progressively improving by Doctors Murphy, Bevan, Lambert and Terrell immediately following the surgical conference held at 9:05 this morning.

It was definitely announced that Colonel Roosevelt will not be permitted to receive visitors, except the members of his family, during the rest of his stay in Chicago. While this precaution is not due to any condition which has arisen since the patient's arrival in Chicago, the doctors insist that there should be no excitement whatever if the best results are to be attained.

Efforts by Mr. Roosevelt's political associates to gain admission to his apartment have ceased since the word went out that medical opinion was a unit against it. Dr. Alexander Lambert, of New York, Roosevelt's personal physician, who was present at the morning consultation, said:

"Nothing could be more satisfactory than the condition in which we find the patient. Mr. Roosevelt is submitting to the necessities of the situation and these involve absolute quiet. I think I may say, with safety, that Mr. Roosevelt will be satisfied to remain where he is at least until the early part of next week."

With regard to the probability that an operation will be performed in Chicago for the removal of the bullet, Dr. Lambert said there was no immediate necessity for such an operation, and that the bullet would probably become encysted within a short time.

"When the bullet is once encased," said Dr. Lambert, "it will be easy enough to operate for its removal at any time. But it would not make much difference whether Colonel Roosevelt had it in his vest pocket or where it is, so far as actual danger to him is concerned."

Dr. Lambert, in discussing the proposition to feed Mr. Roosevelt moose steak for his dinner, declared there was no reason why he should not have the steak if he desired it.

"Moose steak is first rate grub," the doctor said, "and if he has it, with all the regular backwoods trimmings, it won't hurt him in the least."

C. Calhoun used to protect the great special interests of slavery, but an instrument fitted to solve the great problems of tomorrow, just as Lincoln used it to solve the great war problems of his day.

Purpose Is Monstrous.

"Now, if we are right in this, if our faith has a rational justification, it is a monstrous thing to attempt to destroy this great party—this instrument which has been working out the destiny of progress in this nation for fifty years; it is a monstrous thing to allow the impulse, the passion, the lack of vision or of prospective created by the events of a single year, to destroy the organized momentum for good of half a century. Has anything occurred which will justify the anger, the bitterness, the breaking of old ties, and the long waiting before another party of progress can be created?

"On the contrary, I believe that the year 1912 found the Republican party better, cleaner, and more progressive than ever before. On the great problems, which confront the country, its position is one which the nation must adopt, if it is permanently and satisfactorily to solve the great problems which confront the country.

Its Progression Rapid.

"They say it is boss-ridden. On the contrary, the Republican party itself has progressed more rapidly during the past ten years, in the direction of freedom and popular control than in all the other years of its history. Steadily, year by year, corrupt or reactionary leaders have been discarded, and their power has been curtailed.

"They say that the Republican nomination was attained only by theft and fraud.

"I have examined the facts in relation to this charge, and I believe that it is untrue. It is doubtless true that the methods of electing delegates to our conventions, of all parties, Republican and Democratic alike, are in a period of transition. Some states have adopted the direct primary method; in others the old methods estill obtain.

"The very fact that new methods are rapidly coming in, shows that the Republican party is opened to change and reform, and that it is not hidebound in its methods. And the proper course for those who believe in the new method of primary election, is not to destroy the party which is already busily adopting that method, but to go on and hasten to secure its adoption in all the remaining states.

Need Trained Assistance.

"The Republican party believes that, in the difficult problems of our tariff, our corporations, our foreign relations, we should call in the aid of expert assistants and trained specialists. It believes that our executives and congress should have the assistance of trained boards, both to investigate facts and to perform administrative work which we ourselves can not do. Through such agencies as the Interstate Commerce commission, the tariff board, the bureau of corporations, and the bureau of labor, it believes in getting all of the help and information possible before it acts on the great national problem; and it believes, then, in taking such action as will be permanent.

"On the other hand, on most of these important questions, the attitude of the Democratic party is just the reverse. It does not believe in experts; it does not believe in the necessity of their investigations, and it proposes to take the most important steps with no other ... at than the sparkling intuitions of Democratic statesme.

LIGHT ON CANDIDATE COX

Well! Well!! Well!!! Jimmy Cox as a great moralist; as a lover of the "plain peepul;" as an evangel of light and the apostle of brotherly love! We have known Candidate Cox a good many years, and we have liked him always, but we have never known him in his new relationship, disclosed in the present campaign. But in these days men change very fast There is Governor Wilson, who holds in abhorrence the views of Woodrow Wilson, written into imperishable tomes but a short half dozen years ago; and there is the Colonel, who wrote the Republican platform four years ago, named a candidate to run on it and now repudiates the whole thing and even criticizes scathingly, while he defends ferociously his own administration.

But Mr. Cox, the old Enquirer reporter, who was noted for his cynical irreverence for all the uplifters of that early day; Jimmy Cox, who started the Dayton Journal with Tobacco trust money and counted that day lost when he had not accumulated at least two libel suits and been upon one or the other side of a few fistic debates, Cox, who two years ago next January was the manager of that genial gas magnate, Ed Hanley, and who laid the flowers upon the grave of that plutocrat's senatorial boom. Ah, 'tis now a different person.

But James has always been a quickly receptive chap. He has a trained newspaper man's nose for news, and the ability to put it into shape for his personal use. He learned in the old knock-down days that a man could bear more with his ear to the ground, and that if you want to lead the people it is a good thing to find out which way they are traveling and then speed up to the head of the column.

And Cox is marching now just behind the band. He doesn't really care much what is on the banner. He holds that the people only want what they think they want, and they usually change their minds before they get it and hurt themselves with it. And so Cox with that easy adaptability which is one of his greatest charms, shouts: Whatever it is I'm for it. Me for you and you for me; make me governor and we have won a great victory."

There is really nothing foolish about Mr. Cox. Above his cheery smile is a pair of cold eyes, and he knows what he is doing all the time. He realizes that we have come upon a period of unreasoning unrest. All right; he makes a display of restlessness. He sees that this is a time of platitude and proclamation He plats and procs. He observes that some men have won the front by Pecksniffery and demagoguery, and he lets no one beat him to it He is a bully hater, but he hides his feeling and breathes peace and good will He dislikes Harmon, and with reason, and he smothers Harmon under loving kindness until after the Baltimore convention when he genially remarks, "I sorrow with thee, my brother," and then kicks him by turning the organization over to Bill Finley and the Harmon hamstringers. He looks upon the work of Herb Bigelow and is aghast, but game He holds his nose and swallows the whole dose. He figures that he can talk about it and make people forget about the Democratic administration he hopes to continue. He would endorse the principle of infant damnation if it would bring votes, holding that an All Merciful Providence would not let the platform declaration be put into heavenly statute

Oh! yes, James is very, very canny. He is running for the governorship of Ohio in a very favorable year for him He can take the "I and R." and the "uplift" and the tariff—he is really sincere about the tariff; he was bred in Butler county where all the babies are birthmarked "tariff for revenue only—and yell about the immortal difference between what is and what ought to be, while the Colonel is using the money and mud of the trusts and rallying the hosts of ex-officeholders and down-and-outers to divide the Republican hosts And acting with these party wreckers, he can kick up such a dust that the people will be unable to see that his party is closing four years of the most expensive and least effective government the state has ever had; an administration which got into office upon false pretenses, continued in office upon fraudulent misrepresentation and is going out of office in a blaze of scandal and demoralization.

And in the clamor of the moment the people will neglect perhaps to notice that Mr Cox promises nothing definite. He generalizes brilliantly, he specializes and itemizes not at all. He advances no program of retrenchment, advocates no plan for improving the public service, making it more scientific, effective or economical. "Give me a legislature," he cries "which will help me carry out the wishes of the people" What are the wishes of the people? How are they to be expressed and interpreted? Why, by Mr. Cox, of course, in the line of his wishes and ambitions. Here is no definite program of procedure, no definition of purpose, no line of march. There is nothing to it except "Vote for me and let the people rule."

Just the same James Cox is a good fellow. He would not make as good a governor as Robert Brown, who has an intimate acquaintance with state affairs and needs, and no ambition beyond the office he seeks, but Cox would be suave, clever, looking out for Cox always, building up the Democratic machine all the time with one eye on Washington and the other on the main chance and never letting go an opportunity to help himself and the party. He would be a better governor than Garford, because he would be his own manager, his own spokesman and in moments of stress he can be stern and determined.

If he can fool enough of 'em to "put it over," as his "Gravel Hall" crowd phrases it, he will be a picturesque figure, and his performances will be interesting and even amusing, when they are not too dangerous and disastrous.

There is one thing to be said of our Democratic friends; they are in a class by themselves when it comes to living on hope and fasting cheerfully when that hope is blasted.

In the absence of announcement of the fact, we assume that none of our loyal Democratic patriots has yet seen his way clear to letting go of a $10,000 contribution to the Democratic cause.

CLING TO THAT WHICH IS GOOD.

The Youngstown Vindicator, published in a community which has grown in a couple of decades from an unimportant town to a large and prosperous city solely because of the industries developed there under our protective tariff policy, declares that the business men and laboring men are not being frightened this year by the talk of a cessation of profitable industry under tariff revision. Perhaps not; but they have profound reason to be apprehensive. They were not frightened in 1892, when they elected a Democratic president and congress, upon a tariff platform practically identical with the Baltimore platform this year, and to which Governor Wilson has given a cordial, if somewhat bewildered, endorsement. They did not fear then, but they learned not only to fear, but to suffer later, although sectional interests prevented congress from going as far as it was pledged to go in the reduction of the tariff to an absolute revenue basis.

The tariff plank in the Democratic platform this year is an admirably direct and terse statement.

"We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government under the constitution has no right or power to impose or collect tariff duties, except for the purpose of revenue, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government honestly and economically administered."

There it is. It declares as explicitly as though it had been written by Frank Hurd himself, not only that the protective tariff system—under which this country has prospered most amazingly and under which labor has achieved a standard of wage and living not approached in any land or age—is not only wrong in principle, but a violation of the constitution. Believing this, pledged to this, the Democratic party, if placed in power, must abolish the beneficent policy, which has been justified by more than a half century of successful demonstration.

Governor Wilson in a speech on August 15, 1912, said: "We must broaden our borders and make conquest of the markets of the world That is the reason * * * why America is so much interested in breaking down wherever possible that dam against which all the tides of prosperity have banked up—that great dam that runs around all our coasts, and which we call the protective tariff."

And so Governor Wilson stands committed to the revision of the tariff downward to the revenue only basis. And he is opposed to a scientific revision, based upon accurate information. He is opposed to expert knowledge, he claims, and he prefers that our tariff schedules shall be framed upon the old, selfish, log-rolling, political expediency lines, which constituted the sole indefensible part of our most beneficent public policy. He would rather depend upon the "inspiration" which might come to the John Keyes or the Miles McLaughlins of the next congress than upon the information carefully compiled and annotated by a non-partisan commission, without selfish interest or sectional basis.

And still we are told that the people are not alarmed at the prospect of a free trade administration. Again we say, perhaps that is so. Men have short memories at times, and there are voters now who were children in 1894-5-6 and recall the experiences of that time merely as a bad dream. It may be that they have tired of prosperity and constant work. It may be that they think they would be bettered by a resort, figuratively, to the old treatment for high living and enriched blood—the "bleeding" effects of a Democratic administration. They may want to subject themselves to an experiment and an experience which has invariably been disastrous to their fathers and their father's fathers.

They may not be frightened, but they should be. It is within their power to change the present prosperity to depression, the present plenty into penury. They will be counselled to try the experiment tonight, when two advocates of free trade will be in Marion to address them.

They will see Ollie James, who has seen his state of Kentucky make more progress within the last decade than in any half century of its previous history. They will hear James Cox, who has, in the past sixteen years, acquired a splendid fortune and can bear with equanimity the peril of four lean years.

And why should there be a change? It is known to all, who read the news of the world, that conditions in the United States are better than in any free trade country in the world. They know that the standard of living is better, that the standard of wages is higher, that the cost of living is no greater here than in any free trade country. They know by the same proof—that the tariff does not make the high cost of living, but does make it possible to pay the high cost of living.

And many of them are learning what others may find out too late—that the great industrial trusts no longer want to preserve the protective tariff, for they have entered the foreign manufacturing field and made the world their home market: that they are willing now to have our labor reduced to the European standard of submissiveness and the scale of wages which requires unceasing labor to sustain life.

We see our people well-fed and well-clothed; we see offers of five jobs for every laborer at good wages: we see our farmers enjoying a prosperity of which their fathers never dreamed: we see a government honestly, capably, economically administered; we see that Providence has blessed us with peace and bounteous harvests and spared us from pestilence, war and great catastrophes, and we do forget to fear. And then we hear the murmurs of the ungrateful and discontented, we listen to the vaporings of the dreamers, the blatant demagoguery of the ambitious agitators, and we recall our own memories of similar days—and we are afraid and sorely afraid.

And it is not in partisan pleading, not in hope of partisan favor that we ask our readers to read the present portents in the light of past experience, to think and ponder the situation unswayed by passion or clamor, to weigh the motives of men who aspire to lead, to judge the character of those who seek to turn them from the present safe and secure paths into others which have always ended in disaster—to "cling to that which is good," and to change only when they are sure that a change will be better.

We have confidence in the justice, the fairness, the sanity and common sense of the American voter in the mass, when he has had time to reason to a conclusion undisturbed by clamor and undeceived by artful misrepresentation. And we would have no fear now if we knew that the element of time was sufficiently prolonged to permit him to so reach a conclusion

PRESIDENTS TAFT'S RELIGION.

Our attention has been called to a scurrilous document emanating from Progressive party headquarters attacking President Taft, largely by inuendo, upon religious grounds, and reciting what is alleged to be the oath of membership of the Knights of Columbus. We have also had many inquiries as to the denominational relations of the president and his family with the churches.

It is a subject for which we have neither taste nor patience in a political campaign. It is, it seems to us, very late in the history of the republic to bring a matter of that kind into a contest which should be fought and settled upon the real questions at issue. Certainly the fact that the campaign documents alluded to are passed about stealthily is proof that no party and no candidate is brave enough to openly wage a campaign of religious proscription or intollerance. But inasmuch as some of our inquirers seek information in good faith we are going to set the matter forth plainly, once for all President Taft is a member of the Unitarian church, as was his father and most of the members of his family. Mrs. Taft is an Episcopalian. None of his family are Catholics except the wife of his brother, Henry W Taft. During his official residence in Washington he has divided his attendance at church between his own and Mrs Taft's church As president he has favored no church above another, recognizing all, respecting all, discriminating not at all. His chief official relation with the Catholic church came when, under Mr. Roosevelt's administration, he was intrusted with the arrangement of matters of church property in the Phillipines, which he conducted with absolute justice to the Roman church, fairness to the Filipinos and utter loyalty to all the people of the United States In this, as in all other matters in the Phillipines, he won, merited and received the approbation of his then chief and of the people of the United States He has not discriminated against the Catholic church, and he had neither right nor reason to do so. He has not discriminated in favor of that church and he had neither right nor reason to do so, nor has there been occasion for such discrimination, nor a request for special favors.

Our constitution provides for a separation of church and state, and for freedom of worship. Mr. Taft is a man of the broadest mind, reserving to himself the right to hold the religious views that march with his conscience and reason, and freely according that right to others. He has never made church affiliation a matter of mention in connection with public appointments, let alone a matter of qualification.

The president is not a member of the Roman Catholic church, but he would be no less worthy, no less patriotic, no less loyal to his land and its institutions—if he were. Men of every religious denomination have offered their lives upon the altar of American patriotism, and men of every one of these churches would shed their blood for this country now should the sacrifice be required.

The man who dares to question the loyalty of any citizen because of his religious beliefs is either a senseless bigot or a vicious, traitorous partisian.

No man is fit to be president of the United States who does not recognize the good of all churches and who does not seek to practice and promote the essentials of the religion of all of them, and who can not rise above intollerance and bigotry in his official relations.

MOST DECIDEDLY REFRESHING.

Mr William C. Geer, of Galion, is a candidate for common pleas judge in this sub-division. He is well-known, both personally and professionally, throughout the counties comprising the district, and some years ago, as a candidate for the same office, came near overturning the adverse majority and winning the election. So we do not have to comment upon his personal popularity, or his fitness for the place he seeks. What we do want to refer to in this era of timid candidates, endeavoring to carry water on both shoulders and to disguise their convictions and conceal their preferences, is the frank, manly and courageous attitude of Mr. Geer in the premises. In the letter which he is sending out to electors asking their support, he says that while he is a candidate for an office removed by law from partisan politics and voted for upon a non-partisan ticket, he deems it only fair to say that he is a Republican from conviction and by long affiliation, and that he would not surrender his convictions to secure any office, no matter how exalted. Refreshing isn't it? It gives an added zest to our support of Mr. Geer. The bench needs brave, plain-speaking men.

THE ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT.

No matter what we think of the political attitude of Colonel Roosevelt, we sincerely deplore the attack upon his life, and we hope it is even less harmful than the hopeful reports suggest. We should deplore a madman's assault or an assassin's attack on any human being, and we deplore it all the more on Colonel Roosevelt, because he is a great personality, and a great factor in the shaping of our American civilization, just now at a crucial test

In the heat of partisanship the crime will be variously regarded. Already we have heard it referred to as a piece of rare good luck, to advertise and create sympathy. We have heard it declared a deliberate design to thwart his political ascendancy. These are extreme, and both wrong. The assault on Colonel Roosevelt is that of a man insane, and probably made insane by the political strenuosity of the day. He is of the type of Guiteau, who had no possible reason for shooting the lamented Garfield, except an insanity that was born of the political stress of that time.

We trust Colonel Roosevelt will have a speedy recovery, and be able to resume his campaign.

Out in Oregon, a woman is seeking a divorce because her husband has a spiritual affinity. Spirituous affinities are responsible for getting most men into divorce courts.

The great trouble with a lot of these fellows, who are always clamoring for a square deal, is that they insist on doing the dealing.

TAFT HOPES FOR QUICK RECOVERY

Expresses Horror at Act of the Colonel's Assailant.

SAYS DEED SHOULD BE CAUSE FOR REFLECTION

By American Citizens Upon Such Conditions.

The President Issues a Statement in Which He Extends His Deepest Sympathy to Roosevelt and His Family—Urges That All Citizens Join in Condemning the Spread of Vicious Doctrines.

New York, Oct. 16.—President Taft issued a statement on board the Mayflower, Tuesday afternoon, relative to the shooting of Colonel Roosevelt. He said:

"I can not withhold an expression of horror at the act of the maniac who attempted to assassinate Colonel Roosevelt.

"When I briefly expressed my regret last night, I had been informed that Colonel Roosevelt was then speaking and had escaped injury. The news this morning, however, is of a more serious character. I feel the deepest sympathy for Mr. Roosevelt and his family, and I pray that the wound may prove to be only a flesh wound and that, as the surgeons predict, there may be no complications.

Cause for Reflection.

"This assault, following the shooting of Mayor Gaynor two years ago and the assassination of three out of the last nine of the presidents elected by our people, are events which must cause solemn reflection by all Americans upon conditions which make it possible that such dastardly deeds may occur in a country affording to its citizens such complete advantages of civil liberty.

Kill Vicious Doctrines.

"It is, of course, difficult entirely to avoid the malignant purpose of the cunningly insane. . The severe enforcement of the laws against the carrying of concealed weapons and the more rigorous and certain prosecution of all such attempted crimes, whether against prominent or less conspicuous persons, are, of course, helpful, but the condemnation of all good citizens of such acts and their co-operation in preventing the spread of vicious doctrines which would excuse or palliate an attempt to remedy fancied wrongs by resort to violence would be more effective.

"I speak for the American people in expressing the profound hope that Colonel Roosevelt may speedily recover from the effects of this dastardly act."

State Department of Agriculture Gives Report.

THE WHEAT HARVEST POOREST IN HISTORY

A Bumper Crop of Oats—The Harvest Exceeds All Expectations. The Corn Prospects Are Flattering—The Yield of Potatoes Excellent—Falling Off in Apples.

The following report is compiled from returns received from the official correspondents of the Ohio department of agriculture.

Wheat—Estimated area harvested, 1,021,623 acres: product an acre, 10 bushels; total estimated product for 1912, 10,454,425 bushels; quality compared with an average, 76 per cent.; crop of 1911 still in producers' hands, 10 per cent.

Oats—Area as returned by township assessors, 1,865,449 acres; product an acre, 44 bushels, total estimated product for 1912, 83,171,314 bushels; quality compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Barley—Fall and spring, area as returned by township assessors, 37,117 acres; product an acre, 29 bushels, total estimated product for 1912, 1,077,549 bushels; quality compared with an average, 89 per cent.

Rye—Area as returned by township assessors, 85,624 acres; product an acre 17 bushels; total estimated product for 1912, 1,451,889 bushels; quality compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Corn— Prospect compared with normal yield, 96 per cent; cut up for fodder, 68 per cent.; average date for fodder cutting, September 25.

Potatoes, probable total yield compared with last year, 124 per cent.

Tobacco, prospect compared with an average yield, 94 per cent.

Pastures, condition compared with an average, 107 per cent.

Apples, prospect compared with last year, 63 per cent.

With the usual results of harvest now definitely known Ohio's present wheat production is one of the poorest recorded by this department. The harvest figures here presented are based on the area returned by township assessors less the estimated area plowed up as reported by our official correspondents. No doubt the total production will show some increase over the estimate now reported.

The harvest is now estimated at 10,454,425 bushels, an average production of but ten bushels an acre. While this is somewhat better than earlier reports indicated, it practically means failure The wheat especially is of poor quality. The state average is estimated at seventy-six per cent. One year ago quality was reported at ninety-four per cent., with a total estimated production of 31,092,382 bushels. Of the crop of 1911, it is estimated that ten per cent. still remains in producers' hands. Correspondents report that in some sections of state rains have retarded seeding. Many note the fact that the 1913 area will not be as great as the one just harvested.

Oats show a bumper production. The harvest being estimated at 83,171,314 bushels. This is an increase of approximately 37,000,000 bushels over the estimated crop of 1911. The average production an acre is reported at forty-four bushels, as against thirty-one bushels one year ago. The quality of the grain is excellent.

Rye and barley productions also show healthy increase over last year.

Corn prospects are most flattering. The present prospect is estimated at ninety-six per cent. based upon thirty-five bushels an acre representing 100 per cent. On the corresponding date one year ago the prospect was estimated at ninety-one per cent. As the area planted is much greater than in 1911 the harvest should be most bountiful. The crop is late in maturing, due to cool weather in July and late planting.

Reports indicate that the yield of potatoes will be much greater than that of last year. Correspondents estimate the present yield at 124 per cent. in comparison with 1911. In the northeast section of state damage is reported by rot and grub worm.

The crop of apples will fall far short of the excellent harvest of last year. In comparison with that crop the present estimate is sixty-three per cent.

SCHRANK SAYS HE IS GUILTY

The Would-Be Assassin of Colonel Roosevelt

ENTERS HIS PLEA IN POLICE COURT

Nightfall Will Probably See Him in Penitentiary.

The Would-Be Murderer Will Be Asked To Enter Plea Again in Municipal Court and Then He Will Receive Maximum Sentence of Fifteen Years—He Displays No Sign of Emotion.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, who tried to kill Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, today pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill.

"I am guilty as charged. That is all I have to say," was his answer when the judge, N. B. Nelen, in police court asked him to plead.

The plea in police court amounted to a plea on arraignment. The court is without power to sentence to the penitentiary. Accordingly, plans were made to transfer Schrank hastily to a guarded chamber in the municipal court, where he will be asked to enter his plea again. If he does so, he will be given the maximum sentence of fifteen years imprisonment. It is expected he will begin serving his term in the state prison at Waupun before nightfall.

No Attempt at Violence.

Schrank walked into the court under heavy guard. His passage from the cell to the court, through the crowded streets was accomplished without incident. Although throngs of curious people watched, there was no attempt at violence.

The would-be assassin took his stand before the police court bench with unruffled demeanor.

As the charge against him was read, Schrank listened gravely. He displayed no sign of emotion, even when the clerk emphasized the words "with intent to murder."

Waupun is sixty miles from Milwaukee. The sheriff is said to have picked his men to accompany Schrank. He will probably make the trip in an automobile. The state prison officials have been notified to be prepared to receive Schrank.

THE OHIO FARMERS NEED PROTECTION

What the Tariff Means to Farmer at This Time.

THE PANAMA CANAL BRINGS COMPETITION

The Splendid Home Market Will Be Ruined by the Free Products of South America, Cheap Land and Labor—Some Homely Truths by William McKinley.

[By James Boyle, Private Secretary to Governor McKinley.]

No class in the community is more vitally interested in the success of the Republican party than are the farmers. And yet it is to the farmers that the Democrats are making the most demagogic appeals. It must at the outset, be frankly recognized that a great many farmers are dissatisfied at President Taft on account of his endeavors to secure reciprocity with Canada. But as a present possibility reciprocity is now dead, whatever its merits or demerits. Nevertheless the Democrats are hoping that the corpse of the project can be vitalized into a live issue against the president. This is amusing and the partisan endeavor of the Democrats has an impudent aspect when the Democratic party in congress passed reciprocity with Canada, their position being that it was a step toward absolute free trade to which they are in fact committed although their name for free trade is tariff "for revenue only." Fair-minded men however much they may differ as to reciprocity, agree that the president was firmly of the opinion that it would be beneficial to the consumers of the country at large, while at the same time it would not adversely affect the farmers.

More Honest Than Politic.

It will be recalled that in his presidential campaign speeches, the president acknowledged that he had been severely criticized by a large number of farmers on account of his stand on reciprocity but he pleaded that he had acted for the best, and that while he respected the right of people to differ from him on the question he would not change his opinion merely for the sake of getting their votes. Possibly this was a little blusque but it was the language of an honest and a brave man. Contrast this attitude with that of Mr. Roosevelt. That gentleman heartily endorsed the president's plan of reciprocity and strongly urged him to "go ahead," and wrote in favor of it. But reciprocity was defeated by the Canadian people, and there were loud shouts of approval from large numbers of American farmers. Reciprocity became a "dead issue" and there are but few now who are prepared to urge it, for the present at least. Still Mr. Roosevelt had stood for it just as earnestly as Mr. Taft and the Democrats in congress had. But Mr. Roosevelt became a candidate against Mr. Taft for the presidential nomination, and he went West in pursuit of votes for delegates favorable to him. Now, what happened? While on his trip West Mr. Roosevelt discovered what evidently he did not know before, that the farmers of the West—or probably a majority of them—were opposed to reciprocity with Canada. Having discovered this, Mr. Roosevelt completely changed his views. This may have been politic, but, after all the American people prefer a man who will stick to his principles even though they may be unpopular.

Raising the Dead.

But those farmers who are opposing Taft because of his scheme of reciprocity are short-sighted, quite apart from the consideration that a broad guage view of the president's policy and administration must make allowance for difference of opinion on some questions and the writer feels free to say this for the reason that he was one of the numerous Republicans who did not like the reciprocity scheme either in its substance or in the form or manner in which it was attempted to pass it. But it would be folly for the American farmer to turn this government over to the Democratic party simply because he did not like Canadian reciprocity—now a dead issue but which the Democratic party would revive if it had the power and even go much further. Just now there is something else which is real tangible and threatening confronting them—and that is Democratic tariff for revenue only or free trade. The Democratic platform has declared for it, and Candidate Wilson has endorsed the declaration.

The declaration is sometimes made that while protection might possibly benefit the manufacturer and the workingman it cannot benefit the farmer it being impossible for the farmers of the rest of the world to compete with American farmers in the latters own territory, and it is, therefore argued it is useless to put a protective tariff on farm products.

Powerful Foreign Rivals.

Those who so argue fail to recognize the possibilities of Europe in agriculture under modern conditions and looking to the immediate future turn out their eyes to the vast fields of Russia which are showing capacities of enormous production of cereals which could compete with the farms of Canada and the United States with cheap water rates. They also ignore the enormous stretches of arable and pasture lands in South America to be had for a song, which can be worked with cheap labor, and after the opening of the Panama canal the products of these almost limitless territories would be brought in active competition with the products of American farms were it not for the tariff. Agriculture in the United States would become depressed under free trade by reason of this unfair competition of Russia and South America, the cultivation of the soil would inevitably dwindle in this country as it has in England under free trade, and the standard of living of American farmers would be lowered. At present that standard is higher in the United States than in any other country in the world, the self-governing British colonies of Canada, Australia and New Zealand being excepted from this comparison, they being under a policy of protection similar to that of this country. Of course, it would be nonsense to claim that this happy condition in the United States is altogether due to protection but it is reasonable to claim that protection is one of the causes.

It cannot be denied, notwithstanding all the grumbling and clamor—that American farmers were never so prosperous as they are today. The reason of this is that they have command of the best home market in the world. This home market is given and guaranteed to them by protection to American manufactures.

The Gospel of Protection.

In these days of political fustian of wild declamation, it is refreshing and illuminating to turn to one of the wisest and most trusted of modern American statesmen—William McKinley. Listen to what he said in his famous Nebraska Chautauqua speech in 1892—and what he said is true then is true now.

"There is no class of our fellow citizens more clearly benefited by the protective tariff than the farmers of the United States. It makes a home demand for their products and home consumers are always better than foreign consumers because they are nearer the field of production. They enable the farmer to dispose of perishable products at a profit, which it would be impracticable to ship abroad. It therefore increases to that extent the demand for the products of agriculture and widens the use of the farm. Millions of dollars annually of the products of the farm are sold in our industrial towns which would not be raised at all but for the demand which they make. What the farmers want are consumers, and the more consumers and fewer competitors he has the better will be his profits, and he wants these consumers steady and regular and at all times reliable. He has such in the 65,000,000 (now 95,000,000) consumers in this country, who are the best and most profitable consumers to be found anywhere on the globe. He is sure of them, while his foreign market is fitful, far removed, less certain, and dependent upon agricultural conditions in the foreign countries whether there is a short crop or a long crop. There he has competition, here he has practically the field, with little or no competition except with his fellow citizens.

Value of Factories.

"* * * Every farmer would rather have a factory for his neighbor than another farmer. Every factory that is built up increases the farmer's customers, the value of his product and the value of his land. Every factory that is broken down diminishes the farmer's customers, the value of his product, and the value of his land, and increases his competitors. If the workingmen of this country cannot get employment in the factories they must seek it elsewhere. They cannot find it in any other mechanical pursuits, so they must go to the land. There every man can go when he cannot find work at his accustomed occupation, and when he goes there he takes out of the ground a living and he is no longer the consumer of your products, but produces for himself and becomes a competitor of yours instead of a customer of yours, as he is today. Every new industry increases the farmer's home market and furnishes him what he most wants—profitable customers."

GEORGE W. THOMPSON INSTANTLY KILLED

Head Is Crushed Like an Eggshell Between Cars.

AN ACCIDENT NEAR ERIE ROUNDHOUSE

The Victim Is a Resident of Marion About Fifteen Years—He Comes to Marion from Prospect—Leaves Three Children — Arrangements for the Funeral Services.

George W Thompson fifty-one, a car repairer, was instantly killed on the shop track near the Erie roundhouse, Saturday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock. His head was crushed like an eggshell between the corners of two boxcars.

Thompson was stooping in front of a boxcar, out of which the drawbar had been drawn. He was in the act of blocking another boxcar that was being hand-pushed down the track. The block did not stop it and Thompson's head was caught between the corners of the two cars, the drawbar of the car Thompson tried to block going into the space of the car where the drawnbar had been taken out and allowing the upper parts of the car to come together.

Thompson's body fell near the tracks. He was dead before fellow workmen reached his side.

The Hess & Markert ambulance was summoned and the dead man was removed to the undertaking morgue on south Main street, where Coroner W H Hinklin later viewed the remains. The coroner pronounced death due to accidental causes by having his head crushed between the corners of two boxcars.

The dead man came to Marion from Prospect about fifteen years ago, and had been employed by the Erie for some time. He is survived by three children, Mrs Lydia Veith and Miss Mattie Thompson, of Marion and Ray Thompson, of Cleveland. He also leaves several brothers and sisters. The funeral services were held at the home of James Thompson, of Bellevue avenue a brother, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Order of Owls, of which the deceased was a member took charge. Members of the Knights of Pythias lodge at Prospect of which he was also a member, attended.

THE CANDIDACY OF SHEIDLER IS APPROVED

Action Taken by the Election Board Chiefs.

Saturday afternoon at Tiffin, the Thirteenth congressional district's election board chiefs including Charles M Tobin of Marion, upheld the candidacy of Benamin F Sheidler, of Seneca county, as the Bull Moose aspirant for congress.

The Bull Moose congressional committee refused to name Sheidler and endorsed instead Miles H McLaughlin of Nevada the Republican nominee. Sheidler circulated his petition and filed it with the Seneca county election board which on technical grounds did not make the action public until after the five days for filing protests elapsed. Frank Dimon of Sandusky chairman of the Bull Moose congressional committee, then filed the formal protest, which was heard Saturday.

It was at first decided to hear Dimon's protest against John A Key as the Democratic congressional nominee Tuesday but before adjournment the election chiefs changed the time of the hearing to Wednesday.

ANNUAL RALLY DAY AT GERMAN M. E. CHURCH

A Pleasing Program Is Enjoyed Sunday.

ENTIRE MORNING IS GIVEN TO EXERCISES

Rev. Gotti Schaentzlin, of Calcutta, India, Gives an Interesting Talk. Describes the Conditions in India and Talks of the Work Accomplished for Christ.

The annual rally day was observed at the German M E church Sunday morning.

An interesting program was carried out, the regular preaching service being dispensed with and the entire morning being given over to the rally day exercises.

Rev Gotti Schaentzlin of Calcutta, India, a missionary, gave an interesting talk, describing conditions existing in India and telling of the great work being accomplished there for Christ. He is an entertaining talker and related many incidents of his work as a missionary in that country.

One of the features of the program was an address by William Dennig eighty-four years old. He told of the Bible schools of fifty years ago and spoke of the great progress that had been made in Sunday-school work.

The venerable Mr Dennig is the oldest Sunday-school member of the German M E church, and his address proved decidedly interesting.

The infant class, in charge of Mrs John Reidenbaugh and Mrs Henry Wilhelm, rendered a song. The selection was very pleasing.

Rev John G Guenther gave a few minutes talk, and the program was brought to a close.

In the evening Rev Mr Schaetzlin spoke at the church on mission ary work in India, enlarging on his morning talk.

CHARLES F. CLOSE WITHDRAWS NAME

Will Not Appear on Republican Ticket.

Charles F Close, one of the officials to court stenographers of this common pleas district and well known here, has withdrawn as a candidate for prosecuting attorney of Wyandot county on the Republican ticket. He is now a Democratic candidate for the same office without Republican opposition.

The Republicans had no candidate up for the nomination of prosecuting attorney in the May primary, and a few Republicans wrote in the name of Close. That gave him the Republican nomination. Under the ruling of the secretary of state, it was necessary for Mr Close to make choice of tickets on which he wanted his name to appear, and being a Democrat he chose the Democratic ticket, of course. It is an odd political situation.

MRS. JAMES FLETCHER SEEKING A DIVORCE

Begins an Action in Common Pleas Court Saturday.

CHARGES HUSBAND WITH DESERTING HER

Mrs. Fletcher Wishes To Be Restored to Her Maiden Name of Morris—Cleveland Stone Company Sues James W. Scott—Notes Gathered in Common Pleas Court.

October 12, in the court of common pleas, Nancy J. Fletcher, through Mouser & Moloney, brought an action for a divorce from James Fletcher. She asks for a decree of divorce on the ground of three years' wilful absence claiming that her husband deserted her without cause, April 15, 1906. She also asks restoration to her maiden name of Morris. The Fletchers were married at Green Camp, November 22, 1905.

The Cleveland Stone company against James W. Scott is the title of a suit brought in the court of common pleas through Attorney H. N. Harder. The plaintiff seeks to recover $160.73 judgment against the defendant on account. It comes to the common pleas court by way of appeal from the docket of Justice Charles E. Gompf.

Alleging that his wife became possessed of an erratic disposition, with little self control, early in their married life and complained of conditions under which they lived, although he expended more money in domestic expenses than his finances warranted, George H. Uhler, a well-known real estate operator, brought an action for a divorce from Hazel G. Uhler in the court of common pleas, Saturday evening, shortly after 6 o'clock.

The petition, filed by Eymon & Thompson, sets up that the Uhlers were married in this city, October 21, 1903, and that one son, now about eight years old, was born to them.

In September, 1909, Mrs. Uhler proposed, according to the husband, an agreement of separation, declaring she no longer wished to live with him and that ultimately she would obtain a decree of divorce. The separation agreement was formally made and the couple lived apart until some time after Mrs. Uhler moved to Cleveland and filed her petition for absolute divorce. A reconciliation then followed and the Uhlers lived together again until September 28, 1912, when the husband charges his wife left him for the second time and expressed her intention of no longer living with him. He prays that he may be divorced and that the defendant be barred of dower in his real estate.

The transcript from the criminal docket of Mayor Claude D. Walters, in the case of Wesley Banks, who was held to the grand jury on a charge of assault and battery, was filed in the court of common pleas Monday morning.

The October term of the common pleas court was opened with the hearing of Addie Fetter's suit for divorce from Frank J. Fetter, a former policeman. The suit was hotly contested, more than twenty witnesses being summoned to testify.

Monday morning Judge William E Scofield halted the Fetter divorce hearing long enough to charge the grand jury, which immediately began its consideration of fourteen cases. George B. Christian, Jr., was chosen grand jury foreman.

Only eight of the regular talesmen put in an appearance and it was necessary for Court Bailiff Charles Dee to pick up seven more to fill the panel. He rounded up George B. Christian, Jr., Oswald Wollenweber, Oscar Sharpless, C. T. Kelly, W. D. Whipps, Eber Gurley and Fred Gibson, all of whom were sworn along with the following regular talesmen: J. W. Allmendinger, Frank G. Ulsh, Finley Kemper, T. W. Pangborn, Jacob Ullmer, Benjamin Bergman, C. E. Mack and W. R. Issleib.

Forty-six witnesses have already been summoned and the probabilities are that many more will be subpoenaed before the grand jury adjourns.

Following a hearing that lasted practically all day in the courtroom, Monday, Judge William E. Scofield, after the fifteen or twenty witnesses had testified, took under consideration the divorce matter of Addie Fetter against Frank J. Fetter, a former policeman.

In reserving his decision the judge took occasion to counsel the estranged couple, and gave one of those little convincing talks from the bench for which he is noted. The court thought that, inasmuch as they had lived together for nineteen years and raised a family, Mr. and Mrs. Fetter, against whom nothing really had been shown by the testimony, should try to live together again. He urged them to do so, and made no entry on the court docket.

The testimony showed that the most serious trouble of the Fetters was over a young man with whom their daughter kept company. Mr. Fetter did not favor him as a suitor and Mrs. Fetter did.

Tuesday, through Mouser & Moloney, Eliza and Adelma C. Brown, defendants in the suit of Annie S. Brown against the Ohio Farmers' Insurance company and others, filed their joint answer asking for an order from the court directing the insurance company to pay $1,000 fire insurance to the plaintiff and defendants, Martha Mears, Eliza Brown and Adelma C. Brown.

ATTORNEY J. H. EYMON WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

Will Ask the County Commissioners for Relief.

Tuesday, Attorney Eymon, representing school patrons, whose children have been removed from the Central building and sent out of their distirct to other buildings, declared that he would carry the fight for relief to the board of county commissioners.

"I am satisfied in my own mind that more room can be made in the High school for the High school students, and that additional room can be given over to the children in the Central building as a result," said Mr. Eymon. "I shall call the commissioners' attention to the situation, and, under the circumstances, I think they should do something."

The second degree was conferred on one candidate at a regular meeting of Kosciusko Lodge, No. 58, I. O. O. F., Monday night. Several applications for membership were received. It was planned to resume the winter degree work and many candidates will receive the degrees before the winter is over.

Arrangements were made to confer the second degree at the next meeting in one week. Monday night's meeting was well attended.

Meeting of Moose.

Twenty-six candidates were initiated and sixteen applications for membership were received at a meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose, Monday evening. George W. Hamilton, of Pittsburgh, district supreme deputy of the order, will be present at the meeting next Monday evening when the degree will be conferred on a class.

The Owls Gather.

The Order of Owls held a well-attended meeting, Monday evening. Aside from the routine business, arrangements were made to attend the funeral of G. W. Thompson, Tuesday afternoon. A musical program followed the meeting and arrangements were made for an entertainment to be held next Monday evening.

The fall and winter program of active work of Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias, was opened Friday afternoon and night, with the conferring of the esquire rank on a class of six candidates and the serving of a big banquet to 150 members of the order at 6:30 o'clock.

Charles B. Jenkins, of Noblesville, Indiana, a former chancellor commander of the lodge, was at his old station, and the degree work was exemplified in a manner that elicited the admiration of the entire lodge. Four candidates received the work in the afternoon and two in the evening.

The lodge convened at 2:30 o'clock, when a reception was extended Past Chancellor Commander Jenkins. John H. Clark, a former chancellor commander, gave an address of welcome, which was responded to in a happy vein by Mr. Jenkins. Other short talks were then made under the head of the good of the order.

Samuel H. Keller presided as toastmaster at the banquet, when an excellent spread was served. Brief talks were made by John B. King, Grant E. Mouser, John J. Crawley, J. P. Kendall and others. McNeal's orchestra played throughout the time the banquet was being enjoyed.

At 8 o'clock, the degree work was again taken up, and it was a late hour before the lodge adjourned.

The general committee on arrangements was composed of W. T. Jones, A. J. Myers and S. R. Reber, while the entertainment committee consisted of U. G. Lawrence, Elmer Oborn, Bert Engstrom and G. Farr Larle.

THREE YOUNGSTERS ARE TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Two Boys and a Girl Arrested at Bellefontaine.

FOUND FAST ASLEEP IN BUGGY IN STREET

Boys Claim They Do Not Intend To Steal Rig, but Lose Their Way and Are Anxious To Reach Home. Noah Jones Fined for Violation of Traffic Ordinance.

Ethel Thomas, aged thirteen, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, of Leader street, Ray Jones, aged sixteen, who resides in the Olean flats on west Center street, and Otto Knight, aged fifteen, who resides at No. 819 Davids street, were taken in charge by the officers at Bellefontaine about 12 o'clock Monday night. The trio of young people were fast asleep in a buggy standing in the middle of a street in Bellefontaine.

Sunday morning, the two boys and a boy by the name of William Smart, who resides at No. 216 Edwards street, hired a rig at the livery barn of W. E. Davis. According to the statement of the girl's grandfather the Smart boy coaxed her to get in the rig and take a ride with them. He alleges that the boys were intoxicated at the time. Later the Smart boy left the rig and his two companions drove to the country with the girl.

When the rig was not returned Sunday night, Mr. Davis became a little alarmed and, Monday, notified the police and telephoned to some of the surrounding towns. The boys were last heard of about five miles west of Richwood. When taken in charge at Bellefontaine the boys were taken to jail and the girl to a hotel, and the local police were at once notified. The boys stated to the Bellefontaine officers that they had driven out of Marion and lost their way and that they did not intend stealing the rig, but were anxious to get home.

Tuesday, W. E. Davis filed affidavits against the boys charging them with the theft of the rig. Chief McDonough went to Bellefontaine, at noon Tuesday, to bring the boys and the girl back. He was accompanied by an employe at the Davis barn, who drove the rig back to Marion.

Noah Jones was arrested, Tuesday morning, by Officer McColly and taken before the mayor where he was fined one dollar for violating the traffic ordinance. Jones failed to make the proper turn at the corner of Main and Center streets. When the officer ordered him to come back and turn in the right way, Jones refused and his arrest followed.

A pocketbook containing a note for $160 and bearing the name of Edward Thompson and a grocery slip from a store at Addison, was found by Herman Kalkbrenner, Monday, and turned over to Chief McDonough Tuesday morning to await an owner.

QUIET INVESTIGATION IN CIGARET BUSINESS

People Said To Be Avoiding the License Fee.

A quiet investigation is being conducted into the cigaret-selling business in Marion county.

Tuesday afternoon, it was said that the grand jury may probe the selling of cigaret and cigaret papers by those who do not hold licenses.

The records of County Treasurer R. S. Dombaugh show that only twenty-three cigaret licenses have been issued in Marion county, the cigaret tax being $15 a year. Twenty-one of the licenses issued are held in Marion and one at LaRue and one at Prospect.

Of Marion's thirty-nine saloons only two of them have licenses to sell cigarets or cigaret papers.

It is declared that cigarets and cigaret papers are sold in many saloons over the county without the payment of the annual cigaret tax.

Prosecutions may follow.

SERIES OF MEETINGS BEGUN AT MISSION

Alfred J. Walker Delivers Interesting Address.

A series of meetings were begun at the Lime City M. E. mission, Sunday evening. The pastor, Alfred J. Walker, will be assisted in the meetings by Rev. D. N. Kelly, pastor of the Wesley M. E. church. The meetings promise to be very successful.

Mr. Walker preached a strong and convincing sermon, Sunday evening, choosing for his text, II Kings 4:26, "Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband? Is it well with the child?" Mr. Walker urged obedience to parents and God.

The Lime City mission has been growing rapidly and in all probability a larger building will be erected early this winter on the corner of Lee street and Evans avenue.

Body Identified.

The body of one of the men found in the debris of the Big Four wreck, which occurred at Wharton last June, and which was found Sunday, was identified at Upper Sandusky, Monday, as Jackson Teamer, of Salamanca, New York. The identification was made by the unfortunate man's brother and the chief of police of Salamanca.

There are a lot of family trees that need spraying.

A small fire at the V. Major home on Blaine avenue, Sunday morning about 9 o'clock, destroyed a suit of clothes and an overcoat belonging to Mr. Major and a long coat belonging to Mrs. Major.

The family was at the breakfast table when smoke began to fill the rooms and, upon investigation the fire was located in a closet off an adjoining room. The flames were extinguished without calling the department.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is supposed to have been caused from a pipe and matches which were found in a pocket of Mr. Major's overcoat, he having just returned from a morning train and hung his coat in the closet.

GEORGE HENRY THE VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Caledonia, O., Oct. 16.—[Special.]—George Henry, of this place, suffered a painful injury, about 7 o'clock this morning, when a wagon load of coal passed over both his legs, breaking the bones of the right leg, and badly bruising the other.

Henry was hauling coal to the new pike being built northwest of town, and, when near the Frank Ulsh home, west of Caledonia, a wheel came off the wagon. He was thrown to the ground. The wagon, with its load of two tons of coal, passed over both legs.

For dandruff pour over one heaping tablespoonful sulphur one quart boiling water. Keep in an airtight vessel for twenty-four hours, then drain off the clear portion. Rub into the scalp every night until the dandruff disappears. While treating the scalp for dandruff it is advisable that one is careful about the shampoo. The following liquid is excellent for this purpose, leaving the scalp beautifully clean and the hair as fluffy as one could wish: Beat the yolk of one egg into one pint of hot rainwater and add one ounce rosemary spirits. Beat the mixture well and use it warm, rubbing it well into the scalp and over the hair. Rinse in several waters and sit in the sun until the hair is dry.

Yeager lived alone. A few days ago he told several of the neighbors that if they did not call a physician he would die. They paid little attention to the matter at the time, but as he still complained, a physician was called and pronounced his illness due to alcoholism. Yeager had a barrel of hard cider in an out-building and had been drinking heavily. When the barrel was found the contents were almost gone. They think it is supposed Yeager afterward went to the building for a drink and slipped on the damp floor, as he had a cut in the back of his head when found.

Coroner Hinklin was summoned and, accompanied by Dr. C. G. Smith, went to the Yeager home Thursday, where a postmortem examination was held.

THREE YOUNGSTERS IN THE PROBATE COURT

Inquiry as to a Young Girl and Two Boys.

Thirteen-year-old Ethel Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas of Leader street, and her two companions, sixteen-year-old Ray Jones, who resides in the Olean flats on west Center street, and fifteen-year-old Otto Knight, residing at No. 819 Davids street, were arraigned in the juvenile court before Judge William S. Spencer, Wednesday.

The youthful trio was taken into custody at Bellefontaine, having been found asleep in a buggy, which the boys had secured from the W. E. Davis livery barn. The boys and the girl were returned to this city and held on delinquency charges.

The girl, black-eyed and very slender, told the judge she got in the buggy with the boys to take a ride and that they lost their way. She said they kept on driving, trying to find their way home, and in their wandering reached Bellefontane.

Judge Spencer declared both boys had bad juvenile records, and said he was going to turn over their cases to the board of county visitors to hear the testimony and determine their punishment. He declared he did not like to send them to the industrial school unless it was necessary.

Following their hearing in juvenile court before the board of county visitors, Wednesday afternoon, Ethel Thomas, Ray Jones and Otto Knight, the youthful runaways, arrested at Bellefontaine, were released on probation, on the recommendation of the board of visitors. They were given a lecture by Judge William S. Spencer. The story of the trio becoming lost and wandering into Bellefontaine did not appeal very strongly to the court, but the judge said he would be lenient this time because of the youth of the three and because of the faithful promise of their parents to guard them closely in the future.
